$30,000 for a Scenario Tying the Bloodhound Millions in a Name Must Women Pay Alimony?

Free reading notice for Victor Lawson, owner of the Chicago Daily News, most amiable of publishers. Mr. Lawson offers $30,000 in prizes in a moving picture scenario writing contest. The scenario proposition interests publishers, for this reason, Mr. Lawson's Chicago Daily News sells for 2 cents a copy and has a fine circulation. Mr. Hearst's Chicago Evening American sells for 3 cents a copy, and has a bigger circulation than the 2-cent Daily News.

While scenario writers look to Lawson's News for information about the $30,000 prizes, publishers will get Hearst's Chicago American for information on how to make a newspaper at 3 cents a copy outsell its only successful rival at 2 cents without $30,000 contests.

Jim Nesbit, life prisoner on the chain gang, deserved a better fate. He uses his brain. Ordinarily when a negro escapes from the the chain gang Uncle Tom's Cabin methods prevail. The bloodhound, let loose, puts its nose to the ground, barks and runs. The negro runs, keeps on running until he falls exhausted or climbs a tree. The bloodhound barks, at him until the white men come up.

Jim Nesbit of Spartanburg, S. C., knows that bloodhounds trail and bark, but are not savage. He waited patiently for his bloodhound to catch up, patted him on the head, tied him to a tree, and continued his escape, not annoyed by any barking.

He told about it and they caught him, which seems a pity. Like Napoleon crossing the Alps in Winter, Jim Nesbit deserved credit for not believing the fools who said "it could not be done."

Many a man hounded by debt, extravagance, conceit and similar mental bloodhounds, could tile up the pursuer and be peaceful.

Advertising men, call this to your customers' attention. Young Mr. Ziegler, reaching the age of thirty, takes about four millions more from his father's estate.

Royal baking powder built the estate.

Manufacturing and business ability made the powder, but advertising made the name, and when Mr. Ziegler left to his heirs that name, made by advertising, he left what no fire can steal, no hard times destroy, a value more reliable than any bond or mortgage.

If you have a business or product worth while, make it permanent by advertising it. If not worth while, advertise it for sale and get something worth advertising.

A good name in life and a good name in advertising—that is the wealth to leave your son.

Judge Jelle of Minnesota is considering this question:

"Does woman's right to vote carry with it the obligation to pay alimony to her husband?"

The judge might take up this question also:

"Does woman's right to vote carry with it man's duty to bear children?"

Darwin tells of a man in South America that nursed a baby until every great pasture. Men that think women have the better of it in life, will never know how fortunate they are until they try having a baby.

Lenin is supposed to have confessed, in a private letter, that his revolution has failed. In private affairs he is bound to learn that going back to Communism and the "collective instinct" will not work —yet. Men started from the very condition that Communists think ideal, and they have a long way to travel, under strict laws, under the lash of necessity and love of ownership, before they become fit for unselfish emulation with screaming laws unnecessary. All children need authority, and all nations are children.

It is announced in Germany that diamonds are now among the precious stones artificially manufactured on a paying basis. That may disturb some small investors and damage the great South African industry. Otherwise it can disturb nobody. It is good news.

Diamonds, valued merely because they shine, as a Jackdaw values bits of broken glass, are useful only to half a dozen industry artificial diamond production is of utmost importance. Think what it would mean to produce a transparent substance defying heat.

Carbon is plentiful, heat and pressure are available. Window glass or safe deposit boxes of manufactured diamonds. Maybe not costly, might come in your lifetime. Men of the bronze or stone age could not imagine the steel age. But don't hurry to sell your genuine diamonds.

If German chemists have succeeded in producing large carbon crystals, otherwise real diamonds, that may have something to do with the recent drop in diamond values. It would also prove, again, that defeat in war has its advantages. It forces the defeated to work hard and patiently, in many directions, to make up loss.

Ireland's Reply to England Leaves Door Open

PREMIER RECEIVES SINN FEIN ANSWER

Contents Withheld Pending Issue of Joint Peace Communique

Dublin, Aug. 25.—(By the Associated Press)—The reply of the Irish Republican Cabinet to Premier Lloyd George's letter of August 13, in which Lloyd George denied Ireland's right to secession and declined to refer the question of the relations between Southern and Northern Ireland to foreign arbitration, was received at No. 10 Downing street, the Prime Minister's official residence at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

The reply was presented by Commandant Robert Barton of the Irish Republican army. He was accompanied by Art O'Brien, president of the Gaelic League in London, and by Commandant Joseph McGrath.

It was Commandant Barton who on Aug. 11 brought the reply of Eamon De Valera to the Prime Minister's original offer of dominion status to Ireland.)

It is learned that official circles here do not regard today's communication as terminating the negotiations, although the contents of the reply are being withheld pending a Cabinet conference and an agreement between the Irish and Ulster on a joint communique to be issued to the press.

Order Sinn Fein Army to Be in Readiness

Dublin, Aug. 25.—A general order calling for all Sinn Fein soldiers to hold themselves in readiness for active service in the field at any moment was read to all ranks of the Irish republican army today.

the fighting men of Ireland. Whatever contingency arises they will act in a manner worthy of the glorious traditions of the Republican army. The morale of the Sinn Fein volunteers was never higher than it is today."

The army order said:

"Dail Eireann has unanimously approved of the attitude of the government of the republic in the negotiations with the British. A reply is being sent embodying the views of all the members of the Irish Legislature. Until the foreign army of occupation and the threat of foreign aggression is removed, the Irish Republican army must hold itself in readiness.

"We are faced with threats of fresh hostilities and renewed enemy frightfulness in an attempt to compel the people to consent to an arrangement which is not their free choice. Their threats leave the Irish civilians and the soldiers unterrified. By its courage, zeal and efficiency the Irish Republican Army has raised the republic in its present position and has lifted the Irish nation from its state of helplessness and subjection to a position of a proud, self-reliant nation that has made the enemy, at least temporarily, withdraw from its campaign of aggression."

Lester Corkum was standing on the ground at the Hotel Argonne at Bulfinch street sending up roofing materials and tools in a sling. A lump of tar weighing fifty pounds topped off a load at the fifth floor and fell on his head. Arrow points to where body lies covered up.

Three minor children were left in destitute circumstances by the death of their father, Ernest Corkum, No. 10 Washington place, Roxbury, who was instantly killed today when a fifty-pound lump of roofing tar fell from the fifth floor of the Argonne Hotel, Bulfinch street, and struck him on the head.

With other employes he was sent to the hotel today to help in a job of repairing the roof. Corkum was left in the street to send up the material and fools in a sling, the line of which had been rove through a pulley made fast to the end of a spar that was secured on the cornice of the roof, six stories above the pavement.

Two loaded slings had been sent up, and the third, carrying several hundred pounds of roofing tar in large chunks, had reached the fifth floor when the accident happened.

One of the lumps of tar, weighing more than fifty pounds, tilted from its place on the top of the sling and fell.

It was seen by one of the other workmen, who yelled to Corkum to jump. But the warning came too late. The tar struck the man on the head, apparently breaking his neck and crushing in his skull.

Cambridge Grandmother Acts When Ardor of Youthful Wooer Cools

Alleged promises to "bring the world to her feet," to say nothing of the purchase of automobiles of great cost, are expected to figure in a $50,000 breach of promise suit brought by Mrs. Josephine J. LaCroix, fifty years old, and a grandmother, of North Cambridge, against James Barkas, a merchant of that place.

An attachment in the suit was filed in East Cambridge Court today by Abraham Goldberg and John J. Goldberg of Boston, counsel for the woman, who lives with a married daughter at No. 5 Wilbur street, North Cambridge, and who is a widow.

According to friends of the couple, they met four or five years ago, and Barkas, who runs a small store at Massachusetts avenue and Yorktown street, is said to have paid ardent court to Mrs. LaCroix, his senior by a number of years.

Barkas is alleged to have informed Mrs. LaCroix that he would buy for her any automobile she desired, and urged her to make a selection. Friends say the man was taken at his word, but that Mrs. LaCroix selected a certain type of car, Barkas suggested that they go West and marry, after which they could buy a machine.

To this Mrs. LaCroix is quoted as querying "Why go West to marry, when there are plenty of clergymen and justices of the peace right here?" Barkas is reported to have been somewhat nonplussed by this rejoinder, but he failed to buy the automobile.

He is alleged to have continued his attentions to the Widow LaCroix, however, and to have considered that he had given up a number of girls for her. At length his ardor cooled, friends say, and eventually disappeared, with the result that the breach of promise suit was brought. Neither of the principals would discuss the matter.

Cambridge Woman Charges Oakman, Knight and Membrino With Theft of Savings

The third arrest in connection with the alleged fraudulent operations of the United States House Trust was made today.

The prisoner in this case was Grant O. Oakman of No. 502 Warren street, Roxbury, a member of the board of directors of the "Trust." He was arraigned in the Municipal Court, charged with violation of the labor law, in failing to pay Charles E. Symmon wages due.

After the hearing the case was continued until August 31, and he was released on his own recognizance, only to be immediately rearrested by the Cambridge police, charged with the larceny of $1,000 from Mrs. Marie Sylvia, of No. 99 Webster street, Cambridge.

The other officials of the "Trust" who are under arrest and were arraigned in the Cambridge District Court today are Frederick W. Knight, former president of the trust, and John H. Membrino of Newton, one of the directors.

All three were charged in the Cambridge District Court today and the cases against them continued until September 1. In each case Mrs. Sylvia was the complainant, charging that the men conspired to fleece her out of the savings of a lifetime.

4000 Strikers Reported Marching on Mingo County; Harding May Send U. S. Troops

Washington, Aug. 25.—President Harding is now considering the question of sending United States troops into West Virginia as the result of a request from Governor Morgan of that State, it was announced at the War Department this afternoon.

Governor Morgan declared that armed bands were forming throughout West Virginia; that they were moving on Charleston and "armed insurrection" threatened.

The President today conferred on the situation with Acting Secretary of War Wainwright and Major-General Harbord, chief of staff.

Major-General Harbord entered Brigadier-General H. H. Bandholtz and Colonel Stanley H. Ford to West Virginia by aeroplane at once to render a report on the advisability of dispatching Federal troops to maintain peace.

Later it was found impossible for General Bandholtz to make the trip by aeroplane and he was instructed to leave this afternoon by train. This may delay his report to the War Department on conditions and consequent action by the President until tomorrow.

Logan, W. Va., Aug. 25.—An armed band of miners, estimated anywhere from 2,500 to 4,000, is reported moving today toward Mingo County. Reports received here this morning says the forces camped at Marmet had started by automobile across Boone County, intending to cross Logan County and enter Mingo County, where martial law prevails.

This city is an armed camp today, great excitement prevails here as the caravan of armed miners is expected to appear soon. Five hundred men have responded to the appeal of Sheriff Don Chafin to help him repel the invasion of Logan County.

Fully one-half of the union army as spotted in the outskirts of Logan was armed with rifles and revolvers.

MINER'S DESCRIBES TRAGEDY OF AIR

Thought His Time Had Come When Crash Came and He Started to Fall

Howden, Eng., Aug. 25.—(By Associated Press.)—Norman Walker, sole American survivor of the wrecked airship ZR-2, today gave the Associated Press this first account of the disaster which wiped out the great superdirigible and every American member of the crew on board except himself.

Walker was seen at the Howden airdrome, near Hull, where he was just been brought after the terrible experience through which he passed unscathed. He comes from Corpus Christi, Texas, and was a rigger on the fated airship.

He is of boyish appearance, twenty years old, and of a wiry build, which carried him through the ordeal almost without a scratch.

"We were all in the highest spirits when we left Howden on the trial flight," he said. "We sailed over the North Sea first and then started down the north coast to Pulham.

LOW IN THICK FOG.

"A thick fog developed, so it was found impossible to land at Pulham. In fact the officers in charge of us were more or less lost, although we knew the general locality.

"We were flying at a height of about 3,500 feet, with the wireless keeping in touch with both Howden and Pulham. The ship was behaving finely and there was not a sign of weakness anywhere.

and as the fog continued bad we flew along the coast until Wednesday afternoon, when we sighted land at Hull. We then flew across to Howden, where it was decided to land at 6:30 p. m., so we sailed over Hull again. We circled Hull twice and the speed trial was completed without a hitch.

"A test of the ship's control then began. I was at the lower gidder, proceeding back to the tail, and had just reached the cockpit when there was a tremendous crash. The girders amidships broke and the ship split in halves.

"Both the tail and the nose immediately pointed downward and the halves started to descend toward the Humber.

"I certainly cannot describe my sensation, but I thought my time had come.

"I made a rush for the tail to get a parachute, but I found two of my English comrades, Harry Bateman and Walter Potter, were already there. I knew there was only one chute there for the three of us. Bateman had the chute and jumped, but it fouled and he hung to the tail of the dirigible.

"Potter and I started to run forward for other parachutes, but just as I got in the keel there came an explosion of either a petrol tank or hydro and flames immediately began to sweep the forward part of our half of the ship.

"What was happening to our comrades in other parts of the dirigible I don't know. Most of the officers and crew were amidships, either seated or lying in their bunks, when the girders broke.

"At least one man dropped through the gas made by the break. Possibly others did, but probably most of them rolled forward when the airship's nose went down.

"I ran back to the tail to get away from the fire in the bag. Bateman, Potter and I got into the cockpit. By this time the gas was becoming depleted and the ship was shooting down rapidly.

"The forward half had already beaten us toward the water. We couldn't use a parachute then, as we were too low—only a few hundred feet up.

"I saw we were going to land in the water, so I climbed on the fabric forward to the tail cup. I couldn't tell how fast we were falling, but when I thought we were going to strike I jumped.

"I was surprised to find my feet striking the bottom. I had landed in four feet of water near shore. Both my comrades struck in the ship and continued to cling to her as she struck.

"I managed to scramble aboard the wreckage, and the three of us were picked up by a tug."

King George Wires Condolence on Air Tragedy

By Associated Press.

London, Aug. 25.—Foremost among the expressions of condolence over the ZR-2 disaster was one from King George. His Majesty, telegraphing from Balmoral to Air Marshal Trenchard at the air ministry, said:

"I am shocked and grieved to hear of the terrible disaster which has befallen airship R-38 (the British number of the big dirigible), resulting in the loss of many valuable lives of Americans and British, with the relatives of whom I sympathize. I shall anxiously await further information.

(Signed) "GEORGE, R. I.,
Chief of Royal Air Forces."

Official Inquiry on Disaster is Started

By International News Service.

London, Aug. 25.—Official inquiry has begun at Hull today to fix the responsibility for the loss of the world's greatest dirigible, the ZR-2, which lies at Hull, a mass of charred and tangled wreckage in the Humber River.

The disaster, the most appalling in the history of peace time aeronautics, was almost instantaneous. The breaking of the girders and the two explosions which broke the back of the giant craft, sending her crashing with the loss of forty-three lives, all occurred within five seconds.

Out of the forty-nine men on board the glantess of the skies only six escaped, five of them an American, Norman O. Walker, a rigger, of Commerce, Texas.

The following revised casualty list in the disaster was made up at Hull today:

	On Board	Dead	Surviving
British	27	5
Americans	17	16	1

12 BODIES RECOVERED.

Twelve bodies have been recovered and the remains of but two of the American dead have been identified. These are the body of Lieutenant Marcus H. Easterly, thirty years old, of Washington, D. C., radio officer, and Lieutenant Charles Gray Little, twenty-six years of age, of Newburyport, Mass.

From stories told by survivors and the observations of experts, the ZR-2 was carrying too much weight for her framework.

RIVER BEING SEARCHED.

Several girders are believed to have broken under the strain, penetrating the fuel tanks. The petrol flowed out and was ignited by the motors, causing the violent explosions.

Search of the Humber River and the wreckage is under way for bodies of victims. An inquest over the dead will be held later. The British Air Ministry was in sole charge of the craft when she was wrecked.

The presence of mind of Lieutenant Wann averted what would have been even a greater disaster. The ship began to buckle and "hump" while she was over this city. Instantly the commander turned her towards the Humber, knowing that if the blazing craft fell upon Hull it would be calamity for the city. The horror of the disaster cast a pall of sorrow over all England.

ALL IN FIVE SECONDS

"The accident happened with terrific suddenness," said Lieutenant Wann, one of the survivors, as he lay in the hospital today. "The ship was going beautifully. We had been up since 7:10 o'clock Tuesday morning and were delighted with the smoothness of the working parts.

"We had been going at 60 knots an hour late Wednesday afternoon and just before the ninhag had cut down the speed to 50 knots. Suddenly there was a violent crack, and I think several of the girders must have broken.

"Then came the explosions. The whole thing happened in five seconds. There was no sign of anything being wrong as we started to pass over Hull.

"I was in sole control of the ship. It all happened very quickly but from what I saw and heard I think one of the girders in the forepart of the framework must have gone first. The petrol tank was evidently penetrated by the rocked girders and exploded.

"Fire broke out at once, enveloping the gas bag and sending up much smoke."

All the stories agree that the

W. J. Steele, Balnbridge, Ind.

George Welsh, Elgin, Ill.

ZR-2 first buckled and then blew up. There was no sign of smoke, fire or explosion until after the craft's back broke and she began to zag downwards.

NO TIME FOR PARACHUTES.

All the survivors emphasized the suddenness with which the calamity occurred. This accounted for the heavy loss of life. Elaborate precautions had been taken to provide safeguards for the men on board and there was an individual parachute for each. But so quickly did the girders break and the ship explode that the men were caught unawares and only a few were able to take advantage of the parachutes.

General Brook Popham, director of the staff of the British Air Ministry, and G. Cockburn, chief of the Accidents Department of the Air Ministry, accompanied by their staffs, have arrived at Hull to institute a board of inquiry.

They began their official investigation immediately after their arrival this morning. Cockburn is the greatest expert in Great Britain on the causes of air disasters. He has made a special study of this phase of aviation and aeronautics since flying was in its infancy.

Commander Maxfield's body lies in the local infirmary. His wife and daughter have arrived from Fulham to take charge of it.

Broken Girder Was Cause of Disaster

Howden, England, Aug. 25.—(By the Associated Press)—The cause of the disaster to the ZR-2, according to the best information obtained here, was the breaking of a longitudinal girder amidships, made of aluminum alloy, cutting the airship in halves.

An explosion of either hydrogen or petrol occurred immediately after the girder gave way, and flames burst through the structure, but the explosion, it is declared, was not the cause of the breaking up of the airship.

The break occurred in the part of the airship where a girder was strained when she was first brought to Howden. The girder had been reinforced, however, and the ship found to be perfectly airworthy, it was said.

None of the authorities here would venture any opinion regarding the cause of the break.

$500,000 Refund Due to U. S. on Wrecked Blimp

Washington, Aug. 25.—The United States may lose $1,000,000 by the loss of the ZR-2, it was learned at the Navy Department.

The purchase price was $2,000,000, but under the terms of the contract the British and American governments were to divide the loss in the event of an accident before the dirigible reached the United States.

The United States had already paid 75 per cent. of the purchase price, so there is a refund of $500,000 due as a result of the accident.

It is understood here that the airship was fully insured by the British. If so, Navy Department officials stated, it is expected that the entire million dollar loss will be made good.

PUBLIC FUNERAL PLANNED FOR VICTIMS

Services to Be Held in London for American and British Dead

London, Aug. 25 (By Associated Press)—American and British victims of the disaster to the ZR-2 at Hull will be buried in a great public funeral, probably in London, it is considered certain.

The Air Ministry today had the project under advisement and an announcement regarding it is expected at any time.

Meanwhile, all England, profoundly stirred by the destruction of the giant dirigible—the greatest of all air disasters—is giving expression to its deep feeling of sympathy for the victims and sympathy for those bereaved.

In London the atmosphere today was somewhat calm to that which followed the arrival of news of a serious disaster during war days. At the Air Ministry, which yesterday was a beehive of activity, with elaborate preparations for the transatlantic flight, there was today a sensible depression on all sides, but seldom was a reference made to the great calamity.

It was at Howden, Hull, Leeds and neighboring towns, where lived the wives and relatives of many of the men whose lives were snuffed out by the disaster, that the loss was most keenly felt.

In these places, too, were the English brides of nine of the American enlisted men who came to England for the trans-ocean flight. These young women had been eagerly awaiting the time of the ZR-2's start for America and had expected soon to follow on board a government transport to their new homes.

The American dead in the disaster include two members of the American Legion. Lieutenant Little was one of these and Lloyd E. Crowell, mechanic, was the other. Several of the British victims were members of the British Legion of former service men.

Both these organizations will be represented at the funeral services.

As the dirigible was still British property, not having yet been turned over to the American authorities, all investigations of the calamity will be supervised by the British air ministry.

Divers Search Wreck for Bodies of Victims

Hull, England, Aug. 25—(By the Associated Press)—Divers began at dawn this morning to explore the fretwisted wreck of the dirigible ZR-2,

During the hours of darkness that followed the accident tugs stood by the wreckage and keen eyes scanned the water for any bodies that might have been dislodged by the tide.

It was believed that the ruins of the aerial dreadnought held the bodies of fifteen American and twenty-six British officers and men.

Harbor officials today expressed doubt that many bodies would be recovered unless they were held fast in the wreckage or were imprisoned in the gondolas. They said they feared the tide and the swift current of the Humber would carry them away.

Men engaged in the work of salvage reported at the American consulate here this morning that they had found a body believed to be that of Commander Louis H. Maxfield, in charge of the American contingent aboard the ZR-2, several miles below this city.

Maxfield's Body One Of First to Be Found

By International News Service.

Hull, Aug. 25.—The body of Commander Louis Maxfield, U. S. N., was one of the first to be found when the first rescue tug reached the wreckage of the ZR-2. The story of the rescue work was told today by Philip Westerganey, a member of the tug's crew.

"The tug put off with a party of volunteers on board and soon reached the wreck. The rescuers jumped on board the paring parts and began tearing the fabric and the heated and twisted metal bare. It was dangerous work, for one of the bags was still full of gas, and we were afraid it was going to blow up.

"I saw an American naval officer hanging head downwards by his coat. It had caught on a piece of girder. He was dead and was up so high we could not reach him. Lieutenant Taylor of the American air force was one of the volunteers. He tore through the wreckage with his bare hands and did not want to leave as it began to sink under the water. He said he was to keep up his search, for he might find some wounded whose lives he could save. We had to drag him away by main force.

"Commander Maxfield's body was found hanging on a piece of wreckage, lifeless."

The bodies of Lieutenant Charles G. Little and Lieutenant Marcus H. Esterly were exhumed during the day and made ready for their transportation homeward.

Esterly was terribly burned. Little had been drowned. Norman O. Walker, another American, was on board by chance. He took the place of a member of the crew who was sick.

Christiansen Sends Word to His Wife That He Was Not Aboard Fated ZR-2

Hans Christiansen of No. 149 Church street, Newton, who had been a rigger on the dirigible ZR-2, was not aboard the big "blimp" when she exploded, it was at first feared.

Mrs. Grace Christiansen, his wife, today received a telegram from him, dated Hull, August 24. It reads as follows: "Safe and sound. Hans."

She was on the verge of nervous collapse when she got the reassuring message.

Lieut. Little, Newburyport Banker's Son, Among Dead

Lieutenant Charles G. Little of Newburyport, Mass., son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hailey Little, is one of those who lost their lives when the giant United States dirigible ZR-2 was wrecked flying over the Yorkshire coast, England.

Lieutenant Little, officer, twenty-six years old, was recently married in England, where he had gone to join the crew of the dirigible.

His father is the president of the Newburyport Institution for Savings. The family is socially prominent, and reside at No. 227 High street, Newburyport. A brother, Leon Little, was a lieutenant in the United States Naval Reserve force during the war.

Charles was a native of Newburyport and a graduate of the Newburyport High School. He enlisted in the navy when this country declared war on Germany.

COLUMBUS, MASCOT CAT, WAS ALSO A VICTIM

Hull, England, Aug. 25.—There was one casualty on the ZR-2 which was not listed in the official death toll. It was Columbus, the mascot kitten and the pet of the crew. The kitten was to have been taken along on the flight across the Atlantic.

SUZANNE LENGLEN, HAUNTED BY DEFEAT, ON VERGE OF BREAKDOWN

RE-ENACTS MALLORY MATCH

New York, Aug. 25.—Suzanne Lenglen spins her day dreams in the shade of the Forest Hills Inn. At night she tosses restlessly and sleepless.

The day-dreams dissolve; her tragic defeat by Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory is re-enacted, she sees the crowd in the dark room and hears its welcome. The match is replayed and through the interminable night she is defeated again and again.

"You must rest," her doctor orders. She picks up her knitting needles, but the sensitive mechanism, which is the heart of the French girl, thumps its protest.

"I think it would do mam'selle much good if she could only get out on the courts and play just a little tennis," says M'sieur A. R. De Joannis, vice-president of the French Tennis Federation, who acts as Suzanne's manager.

It was decided Wednesday that she should go out on the courts for the first time since her defeat by Mrs. Mallory a week ago last Tuesday. This was to have been the beginning of her rehabilitation. The hour for her return to the courts drew near. Her delicately attuned skein of nerves tightened. She fainted.

"I am afraid you cannot realize how ill Mam'selle is," says M. De Joannis. "She is what Arthur Brisbane says—the most sensitive human in the world—a French girl."

Miss Lenglen has not experienced a perfect night's slumber since her arrival and is barely resting the possibilities of a nervous breakdown.

STRATHMORE COMPANY CUTS PRICE OF PAPER

Springfield, Aug. 25.—A general reduction of the price of writing, bond and ledger paper is foreshadowed in the action of the Strathmore Paper Company, which has cut prices 10 per cent. Holyoke manufacturers are expected to follow suit. There is a rumor that a decrease in prices was agreed on at a conference of paper manufacturers here last week, but this cannot be verified. Reductions here are said to be in anticipation of price slashing by Western manufacturers.

GENERAL ELECTRIC CUTS ALL SALARIES

Lynn, Aug. 25.—A ten per cent. reduction in the pay of all salaried employes was announced today at the local plant of the General Electric Company by the executive offices. To take November 1, and officials here said it was understood it would apply to the General offices of the company as well as to all plants. The wages of the 18,000 employes here will not be reduced, the amount of the reduction varying in the different departments.

THREE SHIPS AGROUND ON THE YANG-TSE BAR

Shanghai, Aug. 25.—The French liner Cordillere, which went ashore on the bar of the Yangtse River on Monday during a heavy storm, turned turtle yesterday afternoon, and it is probable the vessel will be a total loss. The British steamer Glaucus, which went aground at almost the same time that the Cordillere stranded, may be refloated before a storm.

A Norwegian freighter, the Henrik, which was chartered by the Kailan Mining Administration to carry coal, is also aground on the Yang-Ste Bar.

DEDHAM JUDGE GIVES AUTOISTS JAIL TERMS

Two autoists, charged with operating automobiles while under the influence of liquor, were each given thirty days in the House of Correction when arraigned today before Judge Sanborn in the Dedham District Court. They were August A. Zink of Somerville, who was arrested in Wellesley, and Henry T. Callow of Medfield, arrested in that town. Zink appealed the sentence, and was held in $200 bonds for the Superior Court.

500 VETERANS A WEEK APPLY FOR 50 JOBS

Men of All Professions and Trades Besiege Legion's Employment Office

Five hundred weekly applications to fill fifty positions!

This is the situation that confronts officials at the American Legion's employment bureau for ex-service men, open daily at Legion headquarters in the State House.

Day after day a steady stream of young men—the same young men, incidentally, who made up similar streams that poured through recruiting offices in 1917—winds its way through the office, seeking for jobs that are not to be had.

Each week 500 new applications for positions are received at Legion headquarters. And the average number of applicants who can be placed is fifty.

WITHOUT FUNDS.

Many of the former soldiers who apply have had no work of any kind for months. Many are entirely without funds. Approximately half of the jobless veterans have dependents.

In the crowd that scans "want ad" columns in the papers and waits lay after day in the employment office for a chance to make a living are men of all classes, all trades and all professions. Day laborers rub elbows with certified accountants. Hod carriers stand in line with skilled mechanists.

"I don't believe there is a profession in the world that hasn't a representation on our waiting lists," declared Edward Gross, one of the officials in charge of the legion's employment bureau. "We can furnish men for any job there is to be had. Most of the men are willing to do absolutely anything to earn a living. One man, who served overseas, and who is an expert bookkeeper, took a job as garbage collector today. A draughtsman signed up for a ditch-digging job.

HOPE FADING FAST.

"Another man, who came to us in distress after three months of unsuccessful effort to find work to support his wife and two small children, was finally able to land a position at $22 a week.

The veterans who troop through the offices searching for work have not forgotten the cheerful, hopeful bearing traditional to American soldiers. But unemployment conditions have dulled the cheery smiles, and hope is, for many, fading rapidly.

No relief for the situation as regards jobless ex-service men in Greater Boston is in sight, officials declare. Legion heads frankly admit the possibility of soup kitchens during the Winter, soldier relief agencies are facing serious curtailment of activities due to lack of funds.

Meanwhile, the jobless veteran waits uncomplainingly, and wonders what became of the promises to "look after our heroes" after the war.

CRIME INCREASE SHOWN BY JUMP IN ARRESTS

Nearly 33 Per Cent. More So Far This Year Compared With Last

Despite the protestations of reformists, crime is on the increase in Boston.

This fact is certified to by the cold, unemotional statistics of the Boston police for the past seven months.

During the last few months arrests for crimes of all kinds, from murder to petty larceny, have increased tremendously.

For the seven months ending July 31 last, there were 38,719 arrests for all causes, as compared with 29,999 in the corresponding period of 1920—an increase of nearly 33 per cent.

MURDER ARRESTS INCREASE.

Murder charges were made against 19 persons during this period, as against 13 last year, while there were 16,822 arrests for drunkenness, as compared to only 9,500 the first seven months of 1920.

There were also 44 arrested on charges of manslaughter in this seven months' period, while 32 were taken into custody at the same time last year.

Police Commissioner Edwin U. Curtis refused to comment when asked for a statement explaining the crime wave. "You have the figures," said he; "draw your own conclusions. I don't care to comment on the matter."

It does not follow, however, that all these arrested were convicted, but merely charges were made against them by the police to be sustained or not by the Grand Jury or court.

AUTO ARRESTS DECLINE.

Gambling, as well as other misdemeanors, also increased, the records showing 1,867 arrests compared with 1,772 last year. These figures include gaming, being arrested where gaming was in progress and gaming on the Lord's Day.

There were 1,063 arrests for assault and battery this year to date, against 892 last year. August 1. There were 107 robberies, against 55 last year, and for breaking and entering buildings, railroad cars, vessels and other similar offences by day and night, there were 373 arrests as opposed to 314.

Arrests for automobile infractions showed a slight decline, the figures being 4,677 for 1921 as contrasted with 5,613 in 1920, but this year is still far ahead of 1919 in that respect.

HOUSING TRUST HEAD IS HELD FOR THEFT

spectors Cowle and Donovan of the Boston police today made a thorough search of the offices of the trust company at No. 150 Devonshire street, and seized a number of books and documents.

These were turned over to Edwin L. Price, public accountant, with instructions to investigate to learn if possible whether they contained information which should be submitted to the Grand Jury when it meets on September 7.

Knight's arrest, which was at the request of Inspector Cody of the Cambridge force, was made on Knight as he was leaving Municipal Court, where he had been arraigned on a charge of failure to pay Charles J. Scanlon $50 alleged to be due for wages. He was discharged.

According to the story told by Mrs. Sylvia to the Cambridge police she lost the savings of a lifetime of hard work through the manipulations of the two men.

She came to the United States twelve years ago, after the death of her husband, bringing her three little girls and small boy with her. For eleven years she worked, saving a little each week. Sometimes it was only a dollar—but always it was something.

She declares the real estate dealer from whom she bought the lots introduced her to Knight, who told her about the Housing Trust. He is alleged by Mrs. Sylvia to have promised to build her home and to have ended for $1,000 down and $5,000 when it was finished.

She says she gave Knight a check for $1,000 on the Leohmere National Bank of Cambridge. The check was May 19, 1921. Weeks went by, she added, and the work on the house failed to start. She says she complained, but that Knight kept putting her off, finally telling her she must buy an adjoining lot in order to have water in her house.

He offered this lot at $3,50, she says, but finally agreed to let her have it for $50, which she declares, she paid.

There was further delay in starting work on her house. Then she appealed to the district attorney of Middlesex County, and Assistant District Attorney Herman A. Wagner heard her story.

Kewpie Doll in Arms Is Sign of Empty Head, Girl Declares

MISS GRACE CULBERT

Miss Culbert, daughter of Dr. R. B. Culbert of Huntington avenue, agrees with Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, pastor of the Warren Avenue Baptist Church, who scores the kewpie doll fad as the refuge of idle minds. Miss Culbert makes it stronger. It is the refuge of "crack - brained divorcees" and "half-wits" she says.

Doctor's Daughter Goes Pastor One Better in Scoring Fad

By HAZEL CANNING.

Girls, ladies, sisters, misses and mesdames—look before you pick it up and carry it about.

Consider gravely before you stretch out your arms and hold it next your hearts.

Weigh the facts; study the pros and cons; anticipate the consequences. Think what the neighbors will say.

For to carry about a doll is the last refuge of a vacant mind; the first surrender to absolute inanity.

So says Miss Grace Culbert, daughter of Dr. R. B. Culbert of No. 372 South Huntington avenue. In emphatic agreement, in ardent, earnest, heartfelt unanimity, she joins her voice to that of the Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, pastor of the Warren Avenue Baptist Church. Dr. Johnson, just last Sunday, took a fling at the woman who toted around a kewpie.

"To carry about such an 'animile,'" said Dr. Johnson, "is evidence of an idle mind. I strongly suspect that the woman who totes kewpie under her arm when she goes forth awaiking has no great, big, fine moral purpose to her life."

PREFERS THE REAL.

"I'm for the real," said Miss Culbert. "The real is everything. I'd rather have a good piece of filet lace than a 10 cent a yard imitation. I'd rather have pearls than paste, and by all the gods of sincerity, I'd rather carry about in my arms a real baby, than a shrieking, silly kewpie doll. Some women are satisfied too easily. But just consider the vast limitations of a doll, as compared with a live baby. No doll can cry. But let's the real soul of a live-lunged infant just too thrilling for words? Doesn't that baby cry, full throated, imperative, hour after hour—still a woman up to action, and to rocking the cradle?

"Then again, I'm opposed to ritual and to all manner of silly symbols. That's why carrying a doll seems to me barbarous, just like the Chinese custom of burying your grandfather with his rice and chop suey bowl to keep the old fellow from getting hungry. Again it's like laying aside the heathen warrior, his sword clasped to his side. The sword will do the departed soldiers about as much real good as the kewpie doll did Nile, with his sword inset with diamonds, swathed to his side.

"There are two or three kinds of women who should be allowed to carry dolls. Cracked brained divorcees, grass widows of second rate emotional value and 'pazie' which render their futures nil; also star gazing female half wits and all the dumb sheep of the race who want a 'tad an' can' thing up one for themselves. There, every last girl of them, should be allowed to carry a doll. But none others.

SUCH SILLY ANTICS.

"What a shame for any woman to give herself so dead away. Why not pretend to possess a few brain cells, or animals, or pearls? Then again, just consider seriously for a minute. Now's the day when women have so many rights and privileges attained we believe we're really human. We can vote now—and we are beginning to feel that we're no longer in the old time classification—animals, property, children and women." In other words, we are on our mettle, and mother's daughter of us, to explain to the world what we can do. The world today, where women are concerned, is from 'this sour'—wailing for us to show it.

"Then what a shame to detract from our real work, by imitating the silly antics of bold-eyed courtesans on Paris boulevards. Let the pale mondaine carry about her doll or her cutie dog. Let the stupid woman who never had an aim in life so burden herself if she wants to. But let nice Boston women burden themselves with a serious purpose in life. And, if they do, they'll find their arms too full and their hearts too full and their minds too full to be bothered with dolls or dogs or other jim-cracks."

TRAFFIC SQUAD BAND AT CUNEO BENEFIT

penny will be subtracted for expenses.

Waldron wired to Treasurer Lawrence De Caln to spare neither pains nor expense. The theatre which has contributed for the Summer will be opened specially for Friday night's performance. Talent for the Cuneo benefit will be furnished by all the Loew Boston theatres.

George M. Cohan has been invited to do a turn. Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald will sing "Sweet Adeline." Police officers from the Hanover Street Station, where Patrolman Cuneo was attached for six years or more will serve as ushers. It promises to be a big night. Treasurer De Caln says. "The program will knock your eye out."

And it isn't to be a gander party. The women folk are just as welcome as the men. "Charlie" Waldron, the members of the Andrew R. Cuneo committee and the management of the Boston American are eager to pack the house. Commissioner Curtis, Superintendent Crowley and the entire police force indorse the benefit.

The residents of the North End who are close by, are especially urged to attend. Prices are reasonable and in helping out one of the most worthy philanthropies in years you will also be taking in a bang-up show of the actors' benefit variety. Those who have not contributed to the Cuneo fund will find this a convenient and enjoyable means. Come and bring your friends and neighbors. The time is short and the committee and the theatre management must depend upon the co-operation and the generosity of the public.

Don't forget the time and place—WALDRON'S CASINO FRIDAY.

The Boston American Cuneo Fund totaled $12,615.60 today, the tenth day of the collecting campaign. This establishes a record. Three more donation of $100 were received Wednesday, one from Alfred L. Aiken, president of the National Shawmut Bank, another from Kidder, Peabody & Co., and $100 cash was sent in by Police Commissioner Edwin U. Curtis from a subscriber. This was listed under the simple title "Cash."

The Talbot Company sent $50, the John T. Connor Company $50, Edward W. Brewer $50 and the Waldorf System, Inc, $50. A Shuman & Co. donated $25. A the spirit was shown by Company A of the Newton Constabulary which donated $25. Other military organizations ought to follow suit.

The check sent by the Talbot Company, clothiers, No. 403 Washington street, bore this inscription. "Honorable death is better than base life."

LABORITE ELECTED IN WALES MINING DISTRICT

London, Aug. 25.—Morgan Jones, Laborite, was elected to the House of Commons in the bye election in the Caerphilly constituency, in the mining districts of Wales, the result of which was announced here today. Jones received 13,699 votes, as compared with 8,856 for W. R. Edmonds, Liberal, and 5,592 for Robert Stewart, Communist. The bye election was made necessary by the death on Alfred Onions, Laborite.

HUNDREDS OF HOUSES BURNING IN MOSCOW

London, Aug. 25.—Fire started in the most thickly populated part of Moscow several days ago and still is burning, it is asserted by the Helsingfors correspondent of the Central News. Several hundred houses have been destroyed, the correspondent says.

BROKERS RUSH FOR 'BLUE SKY' PERMITS

Law Designed to Protect Investors From Swindles Goes Into Effect Tomorrow

The Blue Sky Law, passed by the last Legislature after Governor Cox and Attorney-General Allen had solemnly declared that $30,000,000 of worthless and fraudulent securities were sold to the people of this State every year and after Charles Ponzi's $15,000,000 bubble had been pricked, will go into effect tomorrow.

Any broker or salesman who sells any security tomorrow or thereafter without a license from the State is liable to a fine of $5,000 and imprisonment for two years and a half. The sale of any stock which fails to meet the requirements of the new anti-swindle law is subject to the same penalties.

The purpose of the new law, which has been the cause of bitter legislative battles running over a dozen years and which was finally passed only after the revelations that the people of the State had been mulcted of hundreds of millions of dollars, is to protect the public investors from the phoney stock promoters.

A total of 242 brokerage firms and 737 salesmen had registered with the State Department of Public Utilities under the new law today. They have paid registration fees amounting to $15,800. The department expects that 500 firms and 2,000 salesmen will eventually register.

Any new organization which proposes to offer its "paper" for sale in this State must file a notice of its intention with the department and seven days later must supply a history of its formation and purposes. If these facts are unsatisfactory, the department may call upon the organization for more facts, including the location and value of the assets behind the issue. This information will be open to the public.

These securities and sales are exempted from the law and may be made without registering the stock:

Evidences of indebtedness maturing less than fourteen months from the date of issuance; isolated sales by owners of securities who are not permanently or actively in the business of stock dealing; stock and bond securities of nation, State and political sub-divisions; any security guaranteed as to principal or interest by the government; securities listed upon any incorporated stock exchange which has been doing business continuously for the past ten years.

Securities which are legal savings bank investments; securities of any corporation whose capital stock does not exceed $25,000; the original issue of stock by a corporation whose stockholders do not exceed twenty-five; judicial sales; distribution of securities by a corporation to the stockholders.

The securities, except those exempted by the law, which have been sold in the State prior to the passage of the law are given six months in which to register.

SPAIN MAY ESTABLISH ARGENTINA AIR LINE

Buenos Aires, Aug. 25.—A Spanish mission, headed by Commander Herrera, arrived here last night to study the project of establishing aircraft communication between Spain and Argentina. He declared that airships could make the trip across the Atlantic in three and a half days.

OPERA STARS AMONG CRETIC PASSENGERS

Boston Globe-Trotters Also Aboard Liner From Italian Ports

Song birds, sight-seers and social notices were promised among the 567 passengers reaching Boston today aboard the White Star liner Cretic. The ship sailed from Italian ports and the Azores.

There were a number of singers for Scotti's San Francisco opera company, among them Jose Palet, tenor; Mrs. Palet, soprano; Angelo Pada, tenor, and other operatic celebrities, men and women. Also present was Ludovico Oliveri, on his way to join Mary Garden's opera troupe in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Fuller of San Francisco were among the most interesting passengers aboard the Cretic. They have been since 1914 in Poland, working with the Hoover American Relief Committee.

Mr. Fuller reported that politically and economically Poland and Southeastern Europe were 100 per cent better off than a year ago. Food is more plentiful. Starving, ragged children are the exception, not the rule. The Fullers expect to return to Europe to take up relief work in Russia, under the agreement recently arrived at between Russian and American officials.

Boston passengers, most of whom have been globe-trotting, included Dr. and Mrs. Ivan Fawcett, Mrs. Lucy Frank, Miss Nancy Meade and Miss Edith Snow.

Jose Bettencourt, an American merchant marine officer, brought back a beautiful Portuguese bride, whom he is taking to Oakland, Cal.

The Cretic came into the harbor last night, but was detained at quarantine and docked this morning. A number of steerage and second class passengers were held to be sanitated. All the second class and steerage passengers were kept aboard pending word from Washington as to their admissibility under the quota rule. But there was little doubt all would be admitted.

The Cretic brought, besides her passengers, a valuable cargo of olive oil, lemons and other Italian and Portuguese products.

8 CEMETERIES FOR WAR DEAD ABROAD

Plan to Enlarge Resting Places Approved by Secretary Weeks

By Associated Press

Washington, Aug. 25.—Approval of a general plan for the enlargement and beautification of American military cemeteries in Europe has been given by Secretary Weeks. The plan provides for the gathering of all dead into eight large memorial cemeteries, it became known today.

The eight cemeteries and the number of graves in each comprise that at St. Mihiel, with 8,000; Meuse-Argonne, 11,800; Somme, 3,600; Aisne-Marne, 6,000; Oise-Aisne, 6,000; Suresnes Paris, 1,700; Brookwood, England, 600; and Belgium, 400.

TODAY'S BEAUTY TALK

You can enjoy a delightful shampoo with very little effort and for a very trifling cost, if you get from your druggist a package of canthrox and dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water. This makes a full cup of shampoo liquid—enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head. Your shampoo is now ready. Just pour a little at a time on the scalp and hair until both are entirely covered by the gaintly perfumed preparation that thoroughly dissolves and removes every bit of dandruff, excess oil and dirt. After rinsing, the hair dries quickly with a fluffiness that makes it seem heavier than it is, and takes on a rich lustre and a softness that makes arranging it a pleasure.—Advertisement.

ESSEX COUNTY WOMEN HEAR CANDIDATES

Aspirants to Congress Face Critical Audience at Salem Willows

The first meeting of its kind ever held in these United States was staged Wednesday afternoon at Salem Willows, when our newly enfranchised women voters called the Essex County candidates for Congress before them and listened to their words of wisdom.

Mrs. Evelyn Masury, chairman of the Essex County League of Women Voters, presided. She was assisted by Mrs. Frederick P. Bagley, acting president of the Massachusetts League, and by Mrs. Trueworthy White, of Massachusetts headquarters.

The speakers, all of whom aspired to filling the vacant seat in the Sixth District, were put through the "Six Fs" by the ladies of the league.

They were Ransom C. Pingree, Haverhill; Colonel A. Piatt Andrews, Gloucester; Lester K. Morse, also of Haverhill, and Harry N. Durham of Salem.

The "Six Fs" he is known, to what all men mean will have to subscribe to before they fully meet the approval, for Congress, of the League of Women Voters.

They include maternity measures, prohibition, child labor laws, instruction in citizenship for the youth, increased vocational training, equal pay for equal work, independent citizenship for married women. Queries had been sent out to the candidates. Yesterday they stood up and told the ladies how they felt on each measure.

Ransom C. Pingree of Haverhill, first spoke and assured the ladies that in all important points he was with them.

He was succeeded by Colonel A. Piatt Andrew of Gloucester, Colonel Andrew was once an opponent of the late Augustus P. Gardner, and Mrs. Gardner, Senator Lodge's daughter, was on the platform near Pingree.

It was supposed that Mrs. Gardner was there to heckle the colonel, but nothing developed.

Lester K. Morse, former Mayor of Haverhill, perhaps made the hit of the afternoon when he urged that the ladies consider the thirsty workingman.

WHOLE WORLD IMPOVERISHED, SAYS VIALLATE

French Economist Declares All Nations Must Reduce Their Standards of Living

By Associated Press.

Williamstown, Aug. 25.—"Inevitable reduction for all nations of their standard of living, perhaps even below the pre-war standards" was foretold here today by Professor Achille Viallate, prominent French economist, in his final Institute of Politics lecture.

The reduction must come, he said, as an inevitable consequence of the fact that "we are now under the necessity of making savings out of our present production in order to compensate for the assets consumed without replacement during the war."

"The condition of the impoverished nations is worse than it appears," he said, "the enrichment of others is, in great part, only an appearance. The fact is that the whole civilized world—victors unquisitioned and neutrals—is impoverished.

U. S. SHIP GRAFT DISCUSSED BY HAPGOOD

Scandal Occupies First Place of Interest Among Officials at Washington

By NORMAN HAPGOOD
Staff Correspondent of the Boston American

Washington, Aug. 25.—For acute mess of interest in Washington just now first place undoubtedly goes to the tangle in the Shipping Board. A scandal is usually more popular than a problem, and the shipping situation combines a first-class scandal with a first-class problem.

Chairman Lasker, meeting a young lawyer at a dance, asked him what he thought should be done with the wooden ships.

"You ought to keep the wooden ships," the young man said.

"Why?" inquired the heavily-laden chairman of the Shipping Board.

"Because," replied his new acquaintance, "if you do not solve your problems successfully, you will need the wooden ships for coffins."

SHIP AS A COFFIN.

The chairman gave the young man a drink and the dance went on.

I am glad I am writing for the newspapers instead of trying to hold down Mr. Lasker's job. Here is one of the recent incidents of his eventful life:

A certain ex-Senator, in Washington on business, was called on the telephone by a friend who happened to be in the Shipping Board entourage. "If you are going to get in your bid," he said, referring to one of the contemplated sales, "you had better hurry up."

"But when bids were asked for," said the ex-Senator, "the time set was the end of this month."

"Yes," said his friend, "I know. But all the same the bids are going to be opened tomorrow."

Suppressing most of his available profanity, the ex-Senator called upon the man in charge of the bids. He indicated what he thought of meddling such a matter before all the bids were in.

"Ah," said the official, "we have got all the bids we want."

OFFERED MILLION MORE.

"Have you?" said the visitor, with more or less fine irony.

"And may I ask how many of these bids you mean to send up to Mr. Lasker for decision?"

"There will be enough."

So the ex-Senatorial attorney hied him to Mr. Lasker and repeated his woe. "Waiting until the end of the month would have done no good," said the chairman. "We have only one bid, and it is satisfactory."

"How much is it?"

"I do not know that I ought to tell you. But I will. It is two million eight hundred thousand."

"Well," breathed out the inquiring lawyer, with some emphasis, "I come here authorized to offer three million eight hundred thousand."

LASKER SHOCKED.

Mr. Lasker, of course, was shocked at what his subordinates had been putting over on him. It is not a debatable question, it is a fact, that the shipping board is shot through and through with graft.

The move for a Senatorial investigation was blocked by the fear of the Democrats that such an investigation would centre on the parts of the situation for which the Wilson administration is responsible, and by the fear of administration Republicans that the present regime would suffer from some of the later facts.

Foremost among the later facts stands out the appointment of attorneys. A good deal of the noise is made about the size and number of salaries recently handed out to legal assistants, and there is plenty to be said on both sides of that question. But a much more effectively subtle drive is against the fact that many of these lawyers have been representing shipping interests that are now urging claims against the Shipping Board.

LARGE SALARIES PAID.

A few Senators asked with some natural heat, whether they were to vote large appropriations without inquiring into so striking a situation as this. It is not denied that salaries of $25,000 and $25,000 are paid to three men who formerly worked for the government at about a quarter of the sum, and who have in the interim worked for a shipping organization that is British in its ultimate control.

DANA DENIES 'L' 'ROBS PETER TO PAY PAUL'

Answers Protests of Dorchester Residents That 5-Cent Fare Is Delusion

Denial that the Boston Elevated Railway was "robbing Peter to pay Paul" by putting a 5-cent fare in effect on short rides was made today by Edward Dana, general manager of the road.

He declared that protests "by a very small minority" in Dorchester against the 5-cent fare inaugurated in that district, were based upon misapprehension.

"If the small group of 'howlers' would make even a casual examination of the system being tried out, they would not be clamoring so loudly against it," declared Dana.

Protests of some Dorchester citizens is that the 5-cent or "community service" plan put into effect, results in several nickels—in some cases as much as 20 cents—to get to and from a given point that formerly cost 10 cents.

"People living in Dorchester," said General Manager Dana, "can get to any place in the district for not more than ten-cents carfare. All they have to do is ride to a terminal. The plan in effect in Dorchester has proved a success to all concerned in other sections of the city.

"It is true that if they use the most direct route over several lines they have to pay additional fares, depending upon the number of lines used. But they can avoid this by going to one of the terminals and paying ten cents.

"The week after the 5-cent fare was put into effect in Dorchester there was an increase in car rides of 58,800, but there was also a loss in revenue of $423.

"Fully 80 per cent. of the traffic is over the trunk lines or long haul. It is believed that by establishing the nickel fare in outlying districts without transfers, much of this low traffic will be made up.

Dana said he would explain the 5 cent fare proposition to the Dorchester Board of Trade at its next meeting.

How I Won And How I Lost—Told By Dempsey and Carpentier
Dempsey says, Nuxated Iron used by him as part of his training was in his opinion an important factor of his phenomenal victory over Carpentier as he believes it materially helped to give him that mighty power to withstand Carpentier's hardest hits and that it also helped to put added punch behind his own blows.

Jack Dempsey Super-Man of the Age
In the great fight Carpentier hit Dempsey with swift powerful blows that had the speed of gun fire. The yelling mob saw him land his famous right on Dempsey's jaw, yet Dempsey never flinched but relentlessly he tore after the Frenchman with his old ripping tearing, merciless power, landing terrific punches on head, body and jaw until Carpentier quickly weakened and then another powerful punch and again Dempsey showed himself to be the superman of the age—the greatest champion the world has ever known.
The London Daily Mail, of July 4th, quotes Carpentier as saying "Dempsey is the most powerful man I have ever met in the ring. He is incredibly strong. To hit him is like hitting a mountain. To take his punches is like feeling the vastness of an avalanche. If I were asked what lead to my defeat, I would say the two tremendous blows Dempsey landed on the nape of my neck. I was not the same after that."
Dempsey says, "I feel I won through greater power, endurance, fighting skill and strategy. I took Carpentier's hardest blows on my chin and while they knocked me back they did not daze me in the least. I am sure Carpentier has not the endurance to stand the hard blows that I can stand, neither has he the strength to deliver them. I understand his methods of training are entirely different from mine. While I believe in scientific boxing still I never lose sight of the important fact that other things being equal it is the man who has the greatest strength, power and endurance that is going to win. In building up these three most important things there is nothing like filling your blood with good old strength giving iron. In preparing for my great fight with Willard I used Nuxated Iron as part of my training, and I felt that it was such benefit to me that afterwards I used it, whenever I felt I was not quite up to the mark, to help restore my strength, energy and vigor; and when I commenced training for my fight with Carpentier, the supreme test of my life I again took Nuxated Iron and I believe it was an important factor in helping me to win so easily in my great victory and I would advise people who are in a weakened condition to try this wonderful strength and blood builder."
When a man so strong and physically fit as Dempsey uses Nuxated Iron, how much more important is it that thousands and thousands of others who are greatly lack physical strength, power and endurance, should avail themselves of its benefits. Nuxated Iron not only contains strengthening organic iron for the purpose of enriching the blood but it also contains the principal chemical constituents of active living nerve force in a form which most nearly resembles that in the brain and nerve cells of man so that Nuxated Iron may be said to be both a blood and a nerve food. If through worry, overwork, constant nervous strain, grief or too much excitement your blood has become impoverished and your nerve force exhausted, you will find that a short course of Nuxated Iron will often produce most surprising results. It has been used and highly endorsed by former United States Senators, Members of Congress, Judges of United States Courts and many prominent people; even Rome having highly endorsed its use. It is now being used by over 4,000,000 people annually.

JACK KEARNS Manager for Dempsey
Jack Kearns, Dempsey's Manager, says: "Knowing what Nuxated Iron had done for Dempsey in the Willard fight I strongly insisted that he use this wonderful strength and blood builder as a part of his training for the fight with Carpentier, and I believe it was an important factor in building up Dempsey's superhuman strength, power and endurance which were such important factors in winning his easy victory.

PRIEST SHOT BY MINISTER WAS UNARMED

Witness in Alabama Murder Case Says No Struggle Preceded Shots

By Associated Press.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 25.—Rev. Edwin R. Stephenson, who shot and killed Rev. James E. Coyle, pastor of St. Paul's Catholic Church, on August 11, was bound over to await action of the Jefferson County Grand Jury after a preliminary trial at which the defense offered no testimony. Bail was denied.

W. N. Orin, first witness called, testified no weapon was found near the body of the slain man. Deputy Sheriff McDuff had testified that Stephenson told him he had shot Coyle after the priest had struck him down and had reached toward his hip pocket as though to draw a weapon.

Otis further testified there was no noise or scuffling immediately preceding the shooting. He said he was standing across the street when the three shots were fired.

Deputy Sheriff Steve Wiggins, another witness today, testified Stephenson told him at the sheriff's office after the killing that the trouble was started when Father Coyle called him into the rectory and told him that he had performed a marriage ceremony for Stephenson's daughter earlier in the day.

Mrs. Ruth Stephenson Gussman, daughter of the minister, whose marriage to Gussman, a catholic, was said to have precipitated the tragedy, testified she had often heard her father make the statement that he "wished the whole catholic institution was in hell" and that he also had made frequent threats against the life of Father Coyle.

Paris Perfections

The latest modes from Paris, fully described and illustrated, appear daily in the Boston Daily Advertiser. There are many hints there that the thrifty woman can use to advantage. Don't fail to get your copy today.

Fresh From Paris

PARIS, France.

A FETCHING country costume to be worn at a smart golf club not far from Paris is seen at the left. Two shades of brown homespun are effectively combined in fawn color in making the little dress, the lining of the cape and the girlish turnover collar, while wood brown is chosen for the cutaway coat and cape. The coat suggests the redingote, but the fastening at the neck is a new touch. The cape, which slips under the collar and ties in the front with brown ribbon, may be removed at will.

Coal Deadlock

Buyers vs. Dealers

Situation is Serious

Coal dealers do not own nor can they afford to own enough motor trucks or horse drawn vehicles to be able to deliver a sufficient amount of coal to keep us warm during the coming winter, if the delivery of coal is deferred until cold weather sets in.

It is very improbable that we will have another mild winter.

B. & M. STARTS FREIGHT WAR WITH AUTOS

The battle royal between gasoline and steam, long awaited and long heralded, is on in New England.

The first gun in the fight for control of the short haul freight business centering about Boston was fired by the Boston & Maine Railroad in the form of an announcement that freight rates on all branches within a fifty-mile radius of Boston would be drastically cut to enable the road to compete with independent trucking concerns.

Since the invention of the automobile, engineers, students of economics and editorial writers, as well as disinterested observers, have been speculating as to the possibilities of large-scale competition between the motor truck and the railroad for freight business.

The war has at last come. The announcement made by Boston & Maine officials discloses that, during the past twelve months, automobile trucks have taken eighty per cent of the railroad's business on all short haul routes about Boston.

Back in August, 1920, the Interstate Commerce Commission authorized rate increases of 40 per cent. to the Boston & Maine. The cars increase promptly went into effect. Then came the beginning of a new chapter in railroad history.

Independent automobile trucking companies began springing up throughout the territory near Boston which had, since the invention of railroads, been shipping its goods to Boston by the steam lines. Inspired by the ruinously high rates prevailing on the railroad, the truck companies began to enlarge, to extend the scope of their activities.

Shippers found a new medium of transportation, quicker and cheaper than the old, awaiting them. The trucking concerns began making enormous inroads on the railroad's business. Leather and shoes from Lynn, fish from Gloucester, cotton goods from Lawrence, bulk paper from Lowell, farm products from inland towns—all began to stream into Boston via automobile trucks. Boston & Maine freight managers discovered their business was dropping almost to the vanishing point.

After an extended period of observation the company finally decided to serve notice that supremacy in the short-haul freight carrying business would not easily be relinquished. This decision eventuated in the rate cuts announced today.

"We have for several weeks been testing this system out on our lines to Haverhill and Lawrence," said G. H. Easton, assistant freight traffic manager. "We cut our rates 50 per cent., to 2 cents per 100 pounds, with a $20 minimum load. The results were highly impressive."

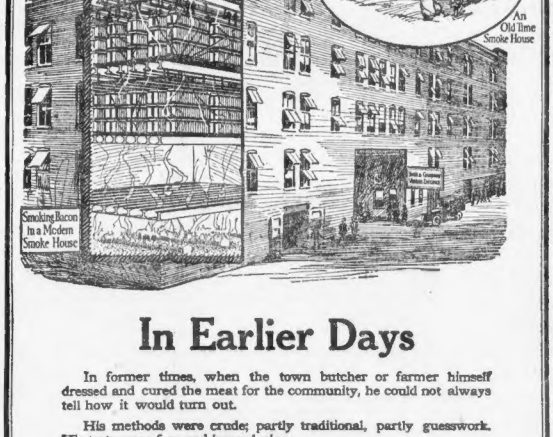
OPEN SATURDAY EVENINGS



In Earlier Days

In former times, when the town butcher or farmer himself dressed and cured the meat for the community, he could not always tell how it would turn out.

His methods were crude; partly traditional, partly guesswork. His tests were few and inconclusive.

Meat packing of today, as carried on by Swift & Company, has changed all that. It is scientific. Nothing is left to chance; nothing taken for granted.

The most painstaking care and attention are given to every step. Processes are worked out on a large scale with minute exactness. Methods are continually revised and improved. Cleanliness is insisted upon. Drastic, incessant inspections are the order of the day.

Swift products are uniform, graded according to quality.

Take bacon, for instance.

Swift & Company set out years ago to make a delicious, savory bacon which should be uniformly excellent.

The result is Swift's Premium Bacon, always the same, always famously good. Today this bacon, wrapped, sealed and branded, has circled the world. Swift & Company's system of distribution carries it to places which the "town butcher" or the farmer could not reach.

BAND CONCERT FOR BIG SWIM SPECTATORS

Added Attraction for the Boston American's Carnival in Charles Basin

Through the courtesy of James B. Shea, chairman of the Boston Park Commission, a band concert is to be given next Saturday afternoon at Charles River Basin, Back Bay, in connection with the Boston American's annual water carnival.

Realizing the great pleasure that will be derived from a program of good music by the thousands of spectators, Mr. Shea kindly shifted one of the regular city concerts for the occasion.

"The Boston American is doing a great deal to make the various parks of this city more popular with the people and it gives me much pleasure to be able to assist in this great work," he said. "One of the best bands we have will help give the people of the city a full measure of enjoyment next Saturday afternoon at the American's carnival."

CONCERT AT 1:30 P. M.

This fine band concert, which will begin at 1:30 p. m., will put the finishing touch to an otherwise attractive program.

The main event, a mile and a half girls' swimming race for the championship of New England, will start at 2 o'clock. Spectators are advised to be on hand promptly. There will be no delay in the start.

The total number of entries has reached 154. This year's race should be one of the finest ever conducted, as the first four prize winners in last year's contest will compete again next Saturday.

They are eighteen-year-old Olive Holland of No. 87 Tyler street, Wollaston, who won first prize and broke the record for the course; Miss Ruth Norwood, eighteen years old, of No. 192 West French avenue, New Bedford, who won second; Miss Lalah M. Squires, eighteen years old, of No. 301 Brookline street, Cambridge, who won third, and Miss May Eckford, sixteen years old, of No. 5 Daisy street, Lawrence, who won fourth.

Each of these girls is anxious to retain the laurels won last season. There will be keen rivalry for first place, as the fair mermaids covet the honor of winning the championship more than they do the silver prizes offered.

TWINS TO COMPETE.

In addition to the four prize winners of last year, many other girls who finished soon after, have entered for Saturday's race and hope to win one of the five prizes. The thousands of spectators who witnessed the wonderful performance of Ethel and Claire Mathieu, the eight-year-old Willimantic, Ct., twins, will be pleased to know that both have entered again. Last year these diminutive sea nymphs finished well up with the leaders.

Other attractions will be the three-quarter mile exhibition swim of Charlie Toth, who swam from Charlestown Bridge to Boston Light a week ago last Sunday and who expects to try the English Channel swim next spring, and the exhibition of floating by Daniel Donnell of Worcester, known as "the human cork."

ENTRIES CLOSE TOMORROW.

Entries for the big swim close at 12 o'clock (noon) tomorrow. No one will be permitted to enter after that hour as numbers are to be assigned all contestants.

Among the most recent entrants are the following:

Isabella Ante, 14, No. 4 Dunsmore court, Cambridge.
Edna Beverly, 28, No. 37 Medford street, Somerville.
Lalah M. Squires, 18, No. 301 Brookline street, Cambridge.

KELLEY BLAMES 'L' FOR DEATHS UNDER TRAINS

Dorchester Representative Says Many Fatalities Were Preventable

Representative Coleman E. Kelley of Dorchester informed the Boston American today that he holds the Boston Elevated Company responsible for all the alleged "suicides" occurring on its system the past nine months.

"I think it is an outrage for the Boston Elevated to state in its reports that these unfortunate people found death by the wheels of 'L' trains, committed suicide," declared the representative. "Ten have been run over and killed in the past nine months.

"If the Boston 'L' had employed safety devices, and put on a few additional guards at its tunnels and overhead structures to protect its passengers from the edge of the pits, many of these deaths would not have occurred.

"I also claim the State Commission on Public Utilities is responsible on this part for negligence to require the Boston 'L' to properly protect its passengers.

"It's an outrage, that's what it is. How much longer do the people propose to stand for this? Not much longer judging from their sentiment expressed at the latest death on the 'L' Wednesday night."

Boston Man Makes Amazing Statement About Gland Pills

Had Been Hopelessly Run-Down for Months—Now Enjoys Perfect Health, Thanks Glandex for Recovery.

"I think Glandex is a great medicine, for it has practically made a new man of me," said Mr. George W. Rowe, for many years a well-known resident of Boston, living at 6 Warrenton Street.

"For the past two years I have been gradually running down. I suffered with stomach trouble and indigestion, and was subject to bad headaches and dizzy spells. Every time I ate distressed me. My liver and bowels were out of order and my kidneys too weak. I had severe aches across my back. I was thin, pale and nervous, and hardly had enough ambition to drag myself to work. I was just about 'all in' as they say. "I had heard a lot about Glandex, so finally decided to try it. I finished one bottle and felt so much better that I got a second. Before I had finished the bottles of this cleanser I'm not a remarkable, but have stomach trouble or indigestion, and can eat just anything. The headaches and dizzy spells have left me entirely. My liver and kidneys have been toned up, my bowels are regular as clockwork, and I have gained about 15 pounds. My skin now clear like a baby's and my color now and I have gained about 15 pounds. I have all kinds of energy and feel perfectly fine. I can work all day and play golf in the afternoon. I feel better than I have for 20 years and am glad to recommend it to all."

Amazing Results Everywhere

The reason Glandex brings such amazing results in run-down people is because it helps build up run-down glands—which secrete into the blood the elements of sturdy health and strength. Glandex feeds run-down tissues with the elements taken from the glands of young calves, and rapidly transforms the weak, nervous, run-down, sickly man or woman into a picture of health and strength.

Glandex is not a patent medicine nor ordinary tonic. Being intelligent, it goes to the cause of your trouble, and by supplying health and strength to the glands, makes a lasting cure. Send at once for free booklet.

SOCIETY HAPPENINGS OF GREATER BOSTON AND NEWPORT

Rhode Island Resort Awaits Coming of Suzanne Lenglen

MISS LOUISA WELD —Photo by White

Miss Louisa Weld is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Winsor Weld of No. 834 Brook street, Chestnut Hill. Miss Weld is one of the most active members of Boston's younger set

By BETTY ALDEN.

Tennis continues to dominate the attention of society at Newport, and interest in the sport will not die down with the close of the Davis Cup finals on Saturday, for a women's inter-city tennis tournament has been arranged to take place on the Casino courts next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The summering smart set was delighted to hear that Miss Suzanne Lenglen will take part in the latter tournament, and the Casino habitues may look forward to some crack playing, both this week and next. Boston will be represented by Edith Sigourney and Eleonora Sears, and one notes with interest that both these players are well-known in the world of society as well as the world of sport.

The recent arrival of the Japanese players and some of their practice playing afforded a pleasant diversion to members of the Summer colony who are now flocking daily to the Casino. The players from Nippon who are out to win the Davis trophy in the international tournament, which begins today, are Zenzo Shimidzu, Ichi Kumagae and S. Kashio. The members of all the visiting teams are being properly "iionized" by the various matrons, who are showering them with luncheons, dances and dinners.

An engagement announcement of great interest to Bostonians is that of Miss Thelma A. Hall, daughter of Frederick Hall, of New York, to Robert F. Herrick, Jr., of Boston and Milton. Miss Hall, who recently made her home at the Chilton Club in Boston, is a member of the Sewing Circle of 1917-18 and belongs to the Junior League and Vincent Club. Mr. Herrick is the only son of Robert F. Herrick, of Milton, and the late Alice Taft Herrick. He was graduated from Harvard with the class of 1916 and his clubs include the Delphic, Hasty Pudding, Phoenix, Varsity, the Institute of 1770, the D. K. E., the Tennis and Racquet, Harvard and the Union Boat; also the Dedham Country and Polo Club. At present he is in business in Boston.

The marriage of Miss Hall to Mr. Herrick is to take place on Tuesday, September 6, and on September 13 they will sail for a wedding journey through China and Japan.

Aquatic sports at Bailey's Beach, Newport, have been quite the rage all Summer, but the most novel event will take place on Saturday when men and women will have races on floating mattresses. The races were arranged by James Brel Stokes and suitable prizes will be offered. Those participating must paddle a mattress over a course of sixty-six yards. There will be a final race between the winners of the men's race and the women's race.

Miss Cathlene Vanderbilt is visiting her father, Reginald C. Vanderbilt, at Sandy Point Farm, Newport. While at the Rhode Island resort Miss Vanderbilt, who has been passing the Summer in Lenox, will probably spend some time with her grandmother, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, at "The Breakers."

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Kean of this city have arrived in New York and are at the Hotel Plaza for a few days.

RENEWS ACQUAINTANCE WITH GEN. PERSHING

Holyoke, Aug. 25.—An acquaintance with General John J. Pershing, begun 22 years ago, was renewed by Major W. J. Crosier, commander of the Military Order of Foreign Wars, at a banquet to the commander of the A. E. F. The two first met at El Caney, in the Philippines, when Crosier was a captain in the 24 Massachusetts and Pershing a captain in the regular army.

CRIMINALS TO UNDERGO RIGID MENTAL TEST

New Law Forces Indicted Men, Previously Convicted, to Face Examination

Every person indicted for a crime who has previously been convicted of some other serious offense will hereafter be given a rigid examination to determine his mental condition under a law passed by the last Legislature in an attempt to avert the crime wave and which became effective today.

The law provides that whenever a person has been indicted or is held for trial in the Superior Court for the commission of a major offense, and is shown by the records to have been guilty of a grievous offense at some previous time, the State Department of Mental Diseases will at once submit him to a mental inquiry.

The law was designed to accomplish a two-fold purpose. It is expected to remove the stigma of the criminal from second or third offenders who are mentally defective and who should, of right, be confined in institutions for the treatment of mental diseases.

It is expected also to be of value in checking the crime wave by sending to mental-disease hospitals the mental delinquents who commit crimes against young women, and who are now sent to jail or prison and finally liberated with full power to commit the attack again.

ONLY EIGHT STRIKES IN STATE, REPORT SHOWS

The Department of Labor and Industries in a report announces that so far this month there have been only eight strikes in Massachusetts and only one in a plant employing more than 100 workers. This is in contrast with August last year in which there were eighteen.

SLAIN MAYORS' WIDOWS TRAILED

Mrs. O'Callaghan and Mrs. McCurtain Followed by Black and Tan Spies

TORTURED IRELAND

By JAMES B. CONNOLLY,
Famous New England Author and Journalist.

They threw the two dead bodies into the lorry and they went shrieking and singing into Tipperary with Maloney's leg held up in the air, yelling "Up, Maloney!" into the town where the boy was born and reared and where the family was well-known, had the body down and the leg up, shouting that way through the streets.

There is no idea of taking prisoners. They are shot like dogs. They don't want prisoners. I have heard a great many tales of torture to prisoners.

LORD MAYOR'S WIDOW TRAILED

Mrs. O'Callaghan (widow of Limerick's Lord Mayor) told me ever since they murdered her husband they have detectives on her house day and night. The first thing she sees in the morning are these men in plain clothes hanging over the wall, wherever she goes they follow her.

In Cork, Mrs. MacCurtain (widow of Cork's Lord Mayor) told me the same. She is followed around by detectives. They want to find out what she is associating with and if they can catch anybody, they want to prosecute the woman.

There is an unpleasant thing with regard to women prisoners in Ireland, or girls taken on suspicion. They are put in the barracks with the Black and Tans.

TEA SHOP SMASHED

There was the case of Miss Kathleen Ryan in Tipperary, who kept a little tea-room. Her sister was fairly active in Tipperary Cumma-na-Mban. Miss Ryan had had a nervous breakdown, and was away from home, as it happened, on the day of a military funeral when all places were ordered closed.

Somebody opened her shop, her sister or mother. The military smashed up everything in the shop and put a proclamation in the window that anybody found on the premises doing business or having any connection with Miss Ryan would be punished severely. When Miss Ryan arrived home she was told what had happened She went to the barracks to explain that she had been away.

She was promptly kept in the day room of the barracks—sitting on a chair in the day room until 12 o'clock at night. No sanitary arrangements for women on the premises.

NERVES BREAK DOWN AGAIN

At 12 o'clock at night they put her down into an underground sort of cell used for drunks and disorderlies, left her there all night. She became violently ill and when morning came she begged of them for God's sake to see a woman of some kind. A police official's wife, a decent woman, saw the condition she was in. Her nerves had gone again and she was in a pitiable state. The woman brought a doctor and the doctor ordered her to a hospital at once.

She was given treatment in the hospital for five weeks. At the end of five weeks she was discharged as being fit to leave. The military arrived and promptly arrested her on the doorstep of the hospital and she was taken between military and police in large numbers in an open lorry from Tipperary to Cork, about sixty miles—think of her going through that experience— and given three months in Cork jail without any charge being put against her.

She is now out. I saw her last week. She is a bit better but her nerves are yet in a frightful condition. That is the experience women have to go through.

There are absolutely no accommodations for women prisoners at all. There is nothing so terrible for Irish women as being thrown amongst these men who have no standards of decency.

I was in Cork with two English ladies of prominence when we decided to go to Macroom for the afternoon, and be back in Cork that evening before curfew, so I ordered a motorcar by telephone.

SUSPICIOUS OF DRIVER.

The car arrived an hour late, at half-past two. When we went down to enter the car I thought the driver was a very peculiar person. He was extremely surly, never raised his hat, very gruff, and a rather sinister looking person.

He said very surlily: "You have to go to the Union Quay police barracks to get a permit."

I said: "You are the driver. Did you not get the permit? Isn't that your affair?"

Reduce All Fleets, Abolish 'Regulars,' Says Dr. Eliot

By International News Service.

Asticou, Me., Aug. 25.—Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard, made the following exclusive statement to the International News Service today on the coming disarmament conference:

"The potentialities of the forthcoming disarmament conference are certainly very great; but its difficulties will also be very great, and I have neither the power nor disposition to predict its achievements.

"I am in favor of large reductions in the fleets of all the naval powers, of the abolition of 'regular' armies and of the complete destruction of militarism and the military professional class by the general adoption of the Swiss system of universal military training."

13 FALL RIVER TAXI DRIVERS ARE HELD

Arrested Following War On Immorality in Cabs—30 More Warrants Issued

Fall River, Aug. 25.—Following closely on the heels of the war against immorality in taxicabs which was instituted here a few days ago, thirteen drivers who were arrested last night were held for the grand jury in bail of $25 each when arraigned before Judge Hanley in district court today.

The men were charged on a number to counts, including soliciting, violation of the prohibition law and violation of the mral law. More arrests are expected shortly. Police officials say thirty additional warrants have already been issued.

The battle against vicious conditions said to have existed here in taxicabs and stores came after scores of complaints had been made by citizens regarding the alleged misuse of motor vehicles by sailors from Newport.

The sailors and others, it is said, were enabled to obtain liquor and meet women through the drivers. On many occasions, it is charged, the taxicab chauffeurs drove people to Providence and Bristol for "parties," after supplying liquor.

A number of women, it is said, will appear as State witnesses when the men come to trial.

Those who are now being held are Joseph Douglas, William Perry, Joseph Davis and John Forsythe, all of Newport; Joseph Frehoi, William Cardina, Joseph Patrick, Joseph Vital, William Tremblay, Armand Leviire, Carl Durfee and Louis Damache, all of Fall River.

WEB TIGHTENS ROUND BOND SWINDLERS

Total Reaped In Questionable Schemes May Run as High as $50,000,000

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Charles W. French, known to his associates as a "financial wizard" and declared by Federal officials to be the "greatest swindler of the century," sat in his cell here today and proclaimed his own "unquestioned integrity." Meantime, according to Assistant United States District Attorney John V. Clinnin, the web of evidence that involves French and a score of his henchmen, in questionable financial schemes that may reach the huge total of $50,000,000 was being woven tighter.

French painted himself as a financial Moses who sought to lead ailing concerns out of the wilderness of business depression. He insisted all of his transactions were legal and blamed his troubles on a group of "powerful financiers" who resented his success in floating huge projects.

Confessions from two more of French's alleged associates, according to Clinnin, detailed methods by which more than thirty business firms were enticed into floating $28,000,000 in fake securities. The confessions were made by Elmer L. Decker of Cleveland and Charles Strobel of Akron, O. Most of the firms involved were said to be Ohio concerns.

Gerber and Strobel, Clinnin asserted, admitted that they had collected in the last three months more than $15,000,000 in unsecured industrial paper for French. Although refusing to make known the names of the firms, Federal officials revealed that automobile concerns, lumber companies and dealers in rubber goods and chemicals were the chief victims.

Details of one of French's most spectacular deals also were revealed today. It involved the moving of the factory of the American Rubber Company to Centralia, Ill., if the city would pay $50,000 bonus. It is declared that the amount was raised and paid to French by Centralia business men who desired to have the $1,000,000 factory located in their town.

Republic of Panama in Mourning for One Month

By Associated Press.

Panama, Aug. 26.—President Porras signed a decree last night declaring the Republic of Panama in mourning for a period of one month. He ordered that the flag be displayed at half-mast on all public buildings.

The action was taken in consequence of the award to Costa Rica of disputed territory along the frontier, and the decision of the United States not to delay Costa Rican occupation of the district.

MELLON STANDS PAT ON BEER REGULATIONS

Secretary Will Issue No New Rules; Awaits Action by Congress

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 25.—Failure of Congress to agree on the anti-beer bill will not mean the issuance of regulations for the sale of beer as medicine, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon announced today.

The secretary said that despite former statements that he would issue beer regulations if Congress failed to pass the beer bill before taking recess, he has decided to withhold the regulations until after Congress reconvenes.

The secretary said that issuance of the regulations would mean the creation of a machine which might be torn down in a month and that it would be a waste of time and energy.

URGES GERMANS TO PREPARE FOR REVENGE

Count Von Walderssee Rattles Sabre as Troops Parade Before Ludendorff

By Associated Press.

Berlin, Aug. 25.—Great crowds looked coldly on while thousands of soldiers who fought during the great war marched before General Ludendorff, Prince Eitel Friedrich, Count Von Walderssee and General Von Der Goltz at the old Berlin Stadium yesterday. The lack of enthusiasm among the spectators was notable, only a few persons uncovering when "Die Wacht Am Rhein" was played by a veteran band.

Count Von Walderssee was the principle speaker at the demonstration, which was characterized by Radicals as a "monarchistic attempt to revive the dying war spirit." His address was fiery in character, the old military chieftain declaring:

"There will come again a day when we will stand together for the Kaiser and the Fatherland. Hatred will stand guard in Germany. We must train our children to use the rifle and sword. So long as Germans suffer under a foreign yoke, and the French stand guard on the Rhine, we must prepare for revenge."

MAJOR-GENERAL WADE DEAD AT 78 YEARS

He entered the army during the Civil War and was in continuous service for forty-six years, retiring 14 years ago. When William H. Take Evans Triple Phosphates With Meals
Gain Several Pounds of Solid Stay-There Flesh

In one month's time EVANS' TRIPLE PHOSPHATES puts on several pounds of solid red-blooded flesh and changes your weak, run-down, nervous, tired body into a strong, vibrating, joyous one or money back.

Of course medical men are surprised and many are still unbelievers, but the fact is evident to every up-to-date pharmacist that Evans' Triple Phosphates will produce flesh without violent methods, such as creamy massages or beauty torture.

Evans' Triple Phosphate comes in small tablet form; a ten days' treatment in each box, and one month's treatment is guaranteed to increase your weight at least several pounds, and in ten day make you feel like a new being, full of ambition, vigor and a desire to accomplish things. An unruly pupil, or even a dull youngster, is lashed with the stick when necessary. (K. & H.)

PAGE THE HUMANE OFFICER! Harold Lloyd of the flickering films, who is in an embarrassing position on Jack, the well-known Dempsey's, knee, is in for a spanking good time. However, what can a chap do when a champ has him thusly? Harold will probably eat his rolled oats off the mantelpiece when the round ends. FRANKIE BRITT EAGER TO WIN U. S. TITLE AS JUNIOR CHAMPION

Robinson entered the ring at 162 pounds.

MacDonald claims that Robinson slipped in a wet corner and that McTigue then crashed a terrific right hand punch to the jaw. Montreal promoters are trying to rematch the two men, but they will have to do some tall hustling to land the contest as several Boston clubs are eager to put on the match.

We wanted to give men the benefits of palm and olive oils in shaving.

We knew these softening, soothing oils were the best for the face—for 3,000 years that had been known. But the problem was to apply their balmy blend to a shaving cream.

It was not easy—though we certainly knew soap making well. Our creation of the finest toilet soap known had proved that.

We made up and tested scientifically 130 different kinds of shaving cream. All other known creams also were tested to learn their virtues and their faults. And step by step, and month by month, we improved formulas until perfection was reached in each quality desired.

Formula No. 130 was right

In this formula we found that at last the ideal shaving cream was attained. It proved superior on these tests:

It multiplies itself in lather 250 times. Just one-half gram—a bit of cream—proves plenty for a luxurious shave.

The oil coating on the beard is removed almost instantly. Within one minute the beard absorbs 15% of water—enough to soften the stubbornest beard. Such quick efficiency is astonishing.

The lather maintains its rich creamy fullness for ten minutes on the face. Plenty of time to shave.

The palm and olive oils are the supreme lubricant, soft and soothing to the skin. So the need for lotions is ended.

Now test it yourself

Millions have already adopted Palmolive Shaving Cream because of these superiorities.

WILLIAMS-WASHBURN RULE FAVORITES IN TENNIS FEATURE

By CHARLES E. PARKER

The first semi-final match in the annual national doubles tennis championship, scheduled for this afternoon on the Chestnut Hill courts of the Longwood Cricket Club, brought together the Davis Cup doubles team of R. Norris Williams and Watson M. Washburn and the Pacific coast pair of William M. Johnston and Willis Davis, and a rare battle seemed in store for the large gallery

Despite the close call they suffered yesterday in their match with Howard Voshell and Sam Hardy, the Williams-Washburn team ruled the favorite.

Their greater experience in doubles play and their more varied style of play were considered to assure that would send the count combine to defeat.

This match was scheduled to start promptly at 2:30 o'clock, but the scores of the day before made numerous other features of interest to tennis enthusiasts, not the least prominent of which is the appearance of Mrs. Mol a. Some of this comment went so far as to suggest that Sam Hardy, who had much to do with the naming of the Davis Cup team, let up in his play against the Williams-Washburn combine. HUTCHISON TELLS HOW HE WON BRISTOL OPEN BY A SINGLE PUTT

By JOCK HUTCHISON,

British Open Champion and American Professional Champion.

I can only recall a few big championships that provided half the thrill that the recent British Open at St. Andrews did. Possibly it was the fact that I was one of the principal characters in this championship that made it seem so spectacular to me.

But whether I had figured in it or not, any tournament or championship that comes down to the last putt, and where one of the contestants must equal the record of the course to tie, is bound to be interesting. I know of no greater thrill in golf than this.

Our open last year was spectacular and the finish very close, as any one of six or seven players had a chance to tie or win on the last green, but record golf was not in evidence. I happened to be the ... ner and had a fourth foot put ... for a tie with big Ted Ray, but I couldn't get the putt down. I was not deserving of it. I would have thrown away some very good chances on the earlier holes.

It was ... while golf that Francis Ouimet played at Sunrise when he tied with Ray and Vardon in 1913 and then beat them in the playoff. In order to tie Francis had to sheet golf on the last nine holes that left him no margin for the slightest mistake.

At Brae-Burn, in 1919, Walter Hagen had to cover the last nine holes in par figures to tie Mike Brady and his golf was up to ... particular order from the ... to the eighteenth. As I remember it, Wa... ter had one extra stroke to make on the 17th hole, but he ... himself ... when he put the ball out of bounds ... Brae-Burn on the ... of the hardest ... of golf in the ... a difficult hole ... broken ... penalty.

I remember this finish well as I served as the "whipper in" for Hagen and his gallery. I ... did not have much of a chance to win myself, but by a good ... could better my position and get a bigger slice of the prize money. ... that I ... served as a pacemaker.

Should I live a hundred years, I will never forget my fourth and last round at St. Andrews that gave me the British championship. When I started off I ... said over and over that what had to be done as I had no way of knowing on the first few holes, who I would have to beat or what figures I would have to make.

I told my caddie, Jack Melville, who was an old school mate of mine, that it would probably have to be a 70 and that I proposed to go for everything. He agreed that this was the proper plan of action.

Well, Jack and I got the 70. I had not figured that Rogers Wethered would be the one with whom I would have to fight it out. At the fifth hole, I met Tommy Kerrigan and he told me he was out in 33. He had a big lead on me at that time and I only hoped to keep close to him and finish second.

At the thirteenth hold I heard that Wethered was in with a total of 286. Those who have played the old St. Andrews links must know that it is no cinch to come home on the last five holes in even fours. I marvel now that I could do it. It must have been the tremendous excitement that sent me along.

There were about 17,000 people scattered over the course. Hearing about my chances they began to swarm around. It looked to me like a whole army when I teed up for the seventeenth, the famous road hole that has thwarted the hopes of many a champion. That great big crowd seemed to be pulling for me, and I ... you it was encouragement that I needed for the old heart was thumping like a bottle drum and the front of my shirt was jumping with every beat.

Well, every word my drive on a true line. I knew I could reach the long narrow green in two, but I dared not take a chance at the close range. The green was like ... ing, baked like cement, making it impossible to stop a long shot with any accuracy. Besides a five and a four would give me a tie. I took my midiron and played to the edge of the green. I stopped my shot itself in bounds ... away and just missed holing a ... but got a par 5.

• • •

Just one more left to play. Charlie Lloyd ... to the alley went the drive away over the road to the left ... a level spot for my second. I ... didn't have ... played the ball better in my hand. I took a midiron and ... stood her up to ... or five yards ... from the pin, and you'll never know ... relief I felt, when I found how ... it was. I knew now that I had a tie at the very worst.

Tommy Kerrigan came ... and says, "Jock, keep ... head, there's no one here who can beat you, and you will win in the play-off sure." I carped her up and just ... a three, but left myself a downhill putt of about a foot or a half, and I can ... how it didn't look any too good right ... My heart was pounding like a runaway engine and I thought of a thousand things that would happen. But I ... realized that if I took too long I would sure miss the little devil. So I went up and ... her and in she ... rolled.

I can't begin to tell you how I felt when I saw that she was down. And I don't know now how I could ... and equal the course record in the last round of a championship, when I had to do it to ... the leader who was already in.

Prices of Stocks Are Headed Downward Again in Wall Street Market

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

The weakness in New Haven securities may be traced to the poor earnings statement for the June quarter. This statement showed a deficit of $4,913,465 as against a surplus a year ago of $147,731. The loss in the first quarter of 1921 was approximately $4,000,000, which makes a total deficit for the six months of about $9,000,000.

During the June quarter New Haven operated at higher than a 95 per cent. ratio of operating expenses to gross and after other income of $1,868,486 showed a balance of only $3,568,760 for fixed charges of $8,482,226, leaving a deficit of $4,913,466.

At the auctioning yesterday $2300 New Haven 6 per cent. convertible debenture certificates, due 1948, sold at 56, which equals the low made on the New York Stock Exchange Tuesday. Previous to last week the low for all time was 58, made earlier this year. The total outstanding is $25,641,200. The 6s are a direct obligation of the company, but are not a mortgage.

August railway reports show the expected improvement in business has not arrived. Analysis of the New Yorker: "Business sentiment now is optimistic, but there seems to be little business to back up the sentiment."

A report of the Southern Railway system for the second week in August shows earnings amounting to $3,113,495, a decrease of $368,313 compared with the same period in 1920.

The Mobile & Ohio also showed a decrease in its statement for the same week, but the Union Pacific, the first of the larger lines to report for July, showed net operating income of $2,102,156, an increase of $1,881,647 against the record made in 1920 for July.

This was made in spite of a decrease of over $2,000,000 which the company showed in its July gross as compared with a year ago, which is held to indicate the strict economy under which the road is operating.

When the stock market, the hub of the economic wheel, is choked up with the rusty blues, progress is bound to be slow. A lubrication of sunshine would help.

Pittsburgh Coal Company interests say that this company will earn its dividends, this year amounting to 6 per cent. on the $35,000,000 preferred and 5 per cent. on the $15,169,200 common stock, as well as interest on the bonded debt which was $14,168,600 at the end of 1920.

After paying dividends on the preferred and common, earnings accrue equally to the two classes of stock. Last year they were 11 per cent. and common 6 per cent. last year.

The company had working capital of more than $40,000,000 at the beginning of the year, consisting of $7,886,662 in cash and $8,153,992 of securities, including large amounts of Liberty Bonds.

Interest from investments alone will come fairly close to covering the present 6 per cent. preferred dividend.

The company earned $16.15 per share on its combined common and preferred capital allotion in 1920, and $61.52 per share in the six years ended December 31, 1920.

Stocks of coal are said to be so low that any measure of industrial revival will create a brisk demand, with possible complications from inability of railroads to handle required volume of coal.

Employes' takings of United States Steel have been increasing steadily for several years and this has necessitated larger purchases by the big company every year. In some periods, it is understood, subscriptions have far exceeded expectations of the corporation officials and a large amount of stock has had to be purchased subsequent to the offering.

In 1921, $1,722 employes subscribed to 258,328 shares, against 161,201 the year before. And it is not improbable that part of the 258,328 shares had to be secured this Spring. Doubtless the corporation is already preparing for the next offering and taking stock on all weak markets.

Public buying also accounts for the great reduction in the floating supply of stock, the amount of which in the hands of brokers decreased from 2,500,000 shares at the end of 1916 to 1,140,561 on June 30, 1921.

The figures of brokers' holdings include a large amount of stock paid for outright, or nearly so, but which has not been transferred to the owners' names and which is not likely to be sold in weak markets, hence the actual floating supply today is probably well under 1,000,000 shares or less than 20 per cent. of the issue.

Telling people to buy stocks won't help. The public never leads, but soon rushes in to follow any real movement.

The promised $50,000,000 2-year 7 per cent. loan to Argentina is making progress and Wall Street expects to hear an announcement regarding it in a few days. It will be by a large banking syndicate, probably comprising some twenty-five institutions.

It is expected that the bonds will be sold on a basis to yield approximately 8 per cent.

MEXICAN PETE AND BALDWIN GO DOWN

Northern Pacific and St. Paul Preferred Drop; Corn Products Also Off

New York, Aug. 25—Price tendencies again were downward at the opening of today's stock market. Dealings were broad and gave indications of an active session.

Mexican Pete after opening ½ lower at 90, broke to 88¾, and Pan-American-Petroleum added ¾.

United States Steel was ¼ lower at 72¾, while Baldwin fell three points to 75, and General Motors fell ½ to 9⅝ and Famous Players was ¼ higher at 14¾.

The railroad issues were again in supply, Northern Pacific dropping ½ to 61¾ and St. Paul preferred showing a loss of ¾ at 35¾.

There was heavy selling of Corn Products, which yielded over one point to 61¾.

Professional operators are still confident of lower prices. Losses were covered in the railroad group at the outset. By the end of the first hour the losses were more than recovered by the railroad list. Union Pacific from 112¾ rallied to 113⅝ and Northern Pacific from 63¾ to 70¼. Utah Copper received to 47¾. Strength was displayed by Studebaker and Mack Trucks. Gains of ½ to 1 in General Electric, Kelly-Springfield, Anaconda, American Sumatra Tobacco and Chandler Motors showed practical gains.

A weak feature was United Drug, which dropped 6¾, against 62 Wednesday. Mex. Pete from 83¾ rallied to 90½.

About twenty-five stocks of various description established new low records in the liquidation of the morning. Foremost issues included General Asphalt common and preferred, American Smelting common and preferred, Utah, Anaconda, Pressed Steel Car, Central Leather, United States Rubber, United Drug and Sumatra Tobacco at recessions of 1 to 2¾ points. National Enameling, Steel Foundry preferred, Penn Seaboard Pipe preferred, Liggett & Myers, American Snuff, Corn Products, People's Gas, Consolidated Gas, American Woolen and Consolidated Textile lost one to four points.

Call money again opened at 8½ per cent., the exchanges with outside offerings at 5 per cent.

Prime mercantile paper, 6 to 8½; sterling exchange dominated at 3.79 bills and commercial sixty-day bills at 3.78 9-16, commercial sixty-day bills, 3.66½; demand, 3.79½; cables, 3.79⅝.

Under the plan of the National Lead Company, by which employes received the common stock at $100 a share instead of $75 a share, 994 employes purchased 10,286 shares, an average of about twenty shares for each worker.

Cotton Market

New York, Aug. 25.—Cotton opening: September, 14.00; October, 14.28; December, 14.72; January, 14.80; March, 14.85; May, 14.90; July, 14.97.

Receipts at the ports for the day are estimated at 14,000 bales, compared with 19,062 last week and 4,681 a year ago.

The market today had another Rise and Fall movement. Trade and commission house buying, inspired by hot, dry weather in the Memphis and Augusta districts, featured the early session. At the advance, however, old longs unloaded and the market reacted to levels about 8 to 10 points from the opening levels.

Car Loadings

Car loadings increased 24,194 during the week ending on August 13, compared with the previous week, it was shown by reports filed yesterday from the American Railway Association. The total for the week was 808,-742 cars, which was 162,599 cars less than the cars loaded during the corresponding week in 1920, and 258,414 cars below the total for the corresponding week in 1919.

Of the 808,742 cars in the loading of last week, which totaled 458,000 cars were coal, an increase of 10,987 cars over the preceding week, but a decrease of about 8 to 10 points from the opening levels.

Cadillac Enlarges Force

More than one thousand men have been added to the working force of the plants of the Cadillac Motor Car Company at Detroit and Cadillac, it was announced today. Sales have been holding up well for several weeks, it was said, and Monday was twice as many cars in July as it did in June.

Trains Deaf and Dumb

Twenty-four deaf and dumb workmen were graduated this week from the flying academy of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company at Akron. The flying squadron rouses rovers in the plants at 4 o'clock each morning, which they then must master every operation in the plants.

WALL ST. GOSSIP

By MONITOR

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Perhaps the most discouraging feature was the continual drifting of selling in the rails. It had been hoped that the week would bring good news for this group. The July earnings were expected to make a good showing and that, despite the moderate gross due to general business conditions. There was also the expectation of adopting by Congress of the railroad refunding bill, which would distribute advantageously the position of the carriers. Wall Street hears, however, that some of the financial obstructors are defeating the bill under no circumstances shall become a law at this session, and there are now semi doubts as to its ultimate enactment. Legislative efforts seem to be concentrated on the passage of the so-called agricultural relief measure calling for the use of $1,500,000 from the War Finance Corporation.

DISCOURAGEMENT over the business outlook, and particularly the earning future of industrial companies, prevented selling for both long and short accounts. This sense of gloom may be modified, but it is not dispelled, by the somewhat more hopeful tone of the reveal of the steel situation in this city. Ages this week and the fact that call money remains at 8½ per cent. in plentiful supply, with numerous loans at 8 per cent. outside the exchange.

FOR many years there has existed in Wall Street a type of loan which is made only on the highest grade of securities, Liberty bonds, and to houses of the highest standing. While nominally at 24 hours' notice, advances are made with the understanding that they will not be disturbed. A new policy has been inaugurated by the banks here, which has resulted in some of the selling that has occurred in stocks. In one instance a loan of this kind was called on fifteen minutes' notice. This class of loan, it is rumored, is to be wholly eliminated, and within the next thirty days a large number of them will be called for payment.

A FEATURE in connection with the loan market which is exercising its effect directly on the stock market is the number of these issues which are now being refused as collateral in United States. Everything pointing to many of this type of stock has been apparent recently, and the refusal to loan is a long one and is being increased as prices decline.

CENTRAL LEATHER has been sold steadily by out-of-town interests as well as by local investors of the professional operators. There has been talk of a reorganization of the capitalization of the company with a $5 assessment. On the highest authority it may be said that there is no possibility of either one. The company today is immeasurably stronger than it has been since the first of the year. There is excellent buying of both common and preferred stock and for the third quarter proved a very pleasant surprise to holders of the stock.

CHANDLER MOTORS made a new low record on liquidation and selling by professionals. Firms who are active in this market are trying to tempt to predict a bottom, but it is known that buying for interests identified with the company is in progress. There is excellent reason to believe that the present 8 per cent. dividend will be maintained when the directors meet. The regular date is Labor Day, but the meeting may be held a week within a day or two thereafter.

GENERAL MOTORS was pressed for sale in large blocks, one lot of 10,000 shares changing hands at 9 1-2. Ever since the Durant holdings were taken over last December, there has been an ample supply of stock in the market to meet all bids. The unwieldy supply of this stock makes it unattractive from the traders' viewpoint.

THREE months ago any one who spoke of salt water in the Mexican oil fields was branded as a propagandist against Mexican oil stocks. Now it is officially announced that three wells in the Panuco field have gone to water in the last week. A 50,000 barrel well of the Tidal Mexico Company followed the 20 cent. water Monday. One of the large wells of the Atlantic Lobos Company has gone to water, while a third well has developed 6 per cent. of salt water.

The Standard Oil Company of Indiana announced the declaration of one cent a gallon for gasoline in the Chicago district to 17 cents wholesale. This might have been construed as a constructive development for the motor situation had not the Standard Oil Company announced a reduction of from $600 to $1,200 for their cars. The continued weakness of the Pierce Arrow issues also militated against the motor shares.

TEXTILE MILLS SHOWING BIG ADVANCE

Liquidation Nearing Completion, Woolen and Worsted Plants Renew Activities

Liquidation is practically complete in the woolen and worsted textile industry.

There is the belief of the overwhelming majority of important factors either actually engaged in or closely associated with it. A round-up of reports from all sections of the country where the industry is prominent indicates that fairly smooth going has been reached, and that in some cases volume is approaching a record pitch.

The heavy demand for all worsted goods is beginning to sound the capacity limits of the mills here, says a dispatch from Woonsocket, R. I. With French interests beginning to build a big new plant there and several mills expanding by additions, it is said, Woonsocket continues to rank as the foremost woolen and worsted centre of Rhode Island.

Reports of capacity production from other centres are borne out by a distinguished Washington authority on the industry during July of this year employed twice as many workers as during July a year ago.

With the exception of the cigar manufacturing industry, says the statement, the woollen industry is the only large manufacturing trade to increase employes during the year.

An Eastern Connecticut correspondent reports that the cotton mills are on a 100 per cent. basis and that employers are hunting for help.

As usual, unfavorable—if not discouraging—reports follow cheerful news.

General Electric Company plans a series of layoffs in the near future which will result in dismissal of several thousand men and women from the Schenectady plant, according to unofficial information. It is said that there will also be a cut in pay for office employes effective Nov. 1. Additional wage cuts are planned until the pre-war level is reached.

Retrenchment program provides for monthly layoffs based on reports of efficiency ratings, according to E. Patterson, vice-president in charge of accounting, who formerly confined his information lately to the works offices, but has recently established offices in Schenectady.

It is said that during the war the factory payroll increased from 80 to 100 per cent., and the office payroll as much. Since then the office personnel is said to have been cut around 50 per cent. Factory force has been subjected to intermittent layoffs and is greatly reduced from war-time figures.

"Now I understand . .

A man formerly in the banking business, being shown through our general offices in New York, stopped suddenly in the Cashier's and Accounting Department.

"Why," he said, "this is like a bank's system. Now I understand what you mean when you say, 'This business has been built up to its present size by the application of banking and commercial methods to the brokerage business."

LAUDS TROTZKY AS 'MARVEL' OF EFFICIENCY

Louise Bryant Claims Red War Minister Is Napoleon of Organization

In today's article on the Russian Soviet republic Louise Bryant defends Leon Trotzky, Lenine's minister of war, as the one great organizer produced by the revolution.

By LOUISE BRYANT.

(Copyright, 1921, by Universal Service.)

NO other Soviet official is vilified in the foreign press to the same extent as Leon Trotzky, Lenine's Minister of War. It is surprising when one considers that he has more "pep" than any other man in Russia.

He runs the War Office in a smooth, efficient manner that would delight any American business man, and Russians all agree that he is the one great organizer produced by the revolution.

An organizer is not apt to be popular. He has to "step on the toes" of too many people and interfere with their pleasures. Last year Trotzky started putting the railroads in order. He began by ruthlessly disciplining the trainmen, insisting on order and cleanliness. He arrested and dismissed and cleaned house generally, but the railway men made such a protest that Lenine had to pacify them. So Trotzky resigned.

The Army is the only institution he has been allowed to organize without hindrance and that is why it is one of the marvels of modern times. It was built out of the ruins of an old army that would not fight. It was fed, clothed, inspired and recreated by Trotzky.

Trotzky has restored the strictest discipline in the army. The election of officers by men in the ranks is no longer tolerated. The Red army has become a great machine, and everything sentimental has been eliminated from it. There is only one order of the Red army would not obey and that would be an order from Trotzky to arrest Lenine.

There was a time, after an attempt had been made on Lenine's life, when all Moscow expected to hear hourly of his death. One evening there was a great meeting and Trotzky came there and spoke.

"We will him to live and his shall live!" he shouted. It was one of the great emotional speeches which will be recorded in any history of the revolution.

Trotzky is the best official in Russia to interview. He always understands what a reporter wants, having been one himself.

The first time I went to see Trotzky I asked him if he liked being War Minister.

"I was never so happy in my life," he said, "as when I began to turn the Red army into a labor army. That was before the Polish offensive. I made a mistake. I will never do it again. Only Russia must have a big fighting force always on hand to meet unexpected attacks."

Trotzky insists he is not a militarist and declares he wishes he could spend the same energy on reconstruction that he is forced to spend on the organization of destructive forces.

FEDERAL TRUST CO. EMPLOYES OUTING

News of Motion Picture World

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

IN THE caring departments of the various motion picture studios are a number of clerks who are kept busy cataloguing the men, women, and children who have appeared in pictures sent out from the individual companies. This includes stars, leads, character players, and even "extras."

For instance, if Mary Jones had been an extra or had played a small "atmospheric" bit, her record is down in black and white. Whenever another such part comes up, Mary is sent for post-haste. These persons are filled under the heads of "northern," "ingenues," "heavies," "comedians," and so on. When a player who has come on less prominent roles is catalogued under such a heading, he or she invariably sticks to that particular "line" of acting.

Not so Mary Alden. This Goldwyn player, who has won fame for a number of characterization declines to be "boxed" like that. Her success as the mother, Mrs. Anthon, in "Out of Nest" has decided her to try something else as soon as a director will let her.

Mary Alden on the screen and Mary Alden in real life are two very different persons. In her mother roles she has a gray wig piled on with gray and pathetic hollows on her cheeks and around her eyes and she has carefully arranged red paint, and trembling, thin lips are due to the wielding of a lip pencil. In real life Miss Alden is young, vigorous and has a remarkably forceful personality.

When she announced her firm decision to conquer other worlds, the directors sighed. After watching her go through scenes a few minutes later, they began to look more cheerful. She can act! While they have lost a wonderful "mother," they have gained a number of other wonderful "persons." "They can't card cases legue me while I'm awake," Miss Alden announced firmly.

EARLY HOURS FOR CHANEY.

LON CHANEY

WHEN the clock strikes ten these mornings Lon Chaney is up and rummaging about make-up box. It takes him nearly two hours and a half to make up as the Chinaman in Marshall Neilan's newest "freak" picture, "Bits of Life."

Chaney doesn't take on a character part without serious thought and study. The fact that he will be a Chinaman in this or an Esquimau in that, we can be sure of, therefore is particularly startling. This is his second appearance as a slant-eyed Oriental, the first time being with Priscilla Dean in "Reputation."

ENGLISH ACTOR WITH LYTELL.

FRANK ELLIOTT is carving a name for himself as a screen "heavy." Since he gave up footlights for the Klieglights and gave up heroing for villaining he has been in great demand out on the West Coast. Elliott has been selected to appear in a prominent role in the next Bert Lytell-Metro special production, "Lady Fingers."

Metro quickly saw the possibilities in this actor when he first came over here from England and promptly signed him up for a long-term contract. He played with May Allison in "The Marriage of William Ashe," and "The Last Card." In "The Hope," and in a picture not yet released, "Dated."

FOR IRANEE PLAY.

WHEN two movie satellites, Otis Skinner and Catherine Calvert, are seen on Broadway next season in a stage production of Ibanez' novel, "Blood and Sand," they will be supported by Cornelia Skinner, daughter of the star. Miss Skinner, a Bryn Mawr graduate, will make her first stage bow in this piece, although she has appeared on the screen. She had a small role in the Robertson-Cole picture, starring her father, "Kismet."

Catherine Calvert will be seen as Dona Sol, the "heavy," though Miss Calvert's appearance in no way corresponds with the description of the character in the book. Ibanez visualized her as a blonde, while Miss Calvert has the jet-black hair that one ordinarily associates with Spaniards.

PINITA DE SORIA COMES.

ON MONDAY night Signorina Pinita de Soria, the Spanish movie player who came to this country some months ago to arrange for a Spanish production of one of our plays, took the part of Mrs. Hope in "The O'Brien Girl," formerly played by Priscilla Dean.

CAMERA CLICKS.

IN SPITE of her experience in the silent drama, it was through her voice that Doris Kenyon, who has just finished work in the Cosmopolitan feature, "Golden-quickie Wallingford," first won recognition. Victor Herbert, the famous composer, discovered her while she was singing in a church choir in Brooklyn.

ESTELLE TAYLOR, the Fox ingénue, has left New York to make productions for that company on the West coast. Her work in super-specials has won decidedly favorable criticisms of late and much is expected of her.

HEDDA HOOPER, the villainess of many screen productions and wife of De Wolf Hopper, is rehearsing for a stage appearance. She is shortly joining the throngs headed stageward. She will be seen in the comedy, "Six Cylinder Love."

GEST TO BRING BIG SPECTACLE TO BOSTON

"Mecca" Will Be Produced at the Opera House for Run Beginning Sept. 12

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Morris Gest, the Boston newsboy who is now one of the most celebrated impresarios in the world, loves to bring back to Boston big great New York productions and show the folks who used to buy his papers what wonderful things he has accomplished.

This year first will show Boston "Mecca," declared to be the finest and most spectacular production ever made in America, or anywhere else.

The vast sum of $450,000 was spent upon the "Mecca" production, "got a large front" in motion picture parlance, but three times greater than any other stage production ever cost.

"I'm bringing 'Mecca' to Boston," declared Gest, "and I am going to it in Boston Opera House because I wouldn't sacrifice a single item in the big production, which I would have to do if I played a down town theatre.

"The Boston Opera House is one of the world's finest theatres. Boston has a right to be proud of it and ought to patronize it more. It's crime that Boston hasn't got a great opera company, because that beautiful theatre. However, 'Mecca' is the next best thing."

"Mecca" is the last big spectacular production this country will see for many a year. To produce such a show on normal present conditions with the cost of labor and transportation at prohibitive prices is a terrific undertaking, and if we sell out at the Opera House it's every performance worth so much better than breakeven. But there are four hundred people on our payroll in "Mecca." I can keep these people employed as spectacles only a certain time. I don't make a cent I shall be happy.

"The last time I was in Boston

Former Boston Newsboy Now Theatre Magnate in New York

MORRIS GEST

met a friend who used to sell papers with me who said:

"Morris I am glad you have become rich and famous."

"Famous, maybe," I said. 'But rich, no. I haven't got any money out of the show business for myself as yet, because whatever one production would make I would always put into something more beautiful and more expensive. I love to do big things. For myself, three square meals, and a bed and clothes enough to cover me, and I am happy."

"Mecca" is the last of a series of great Gest spectacles which began with "Experiment" and included "The Wanderer," "Chu Chin Chow," and "Aphrodite." It comes September 12.

COX ENDORSES UNIVERSITY AT DEVENS

Governor and Hub Business Men Favor Plan to Aid Ex-Service Men

Governor Channing H. Cox today joined in advocating the establishment in Camp Devens of one of the four government universities authorized for ex-service men by the recently adopted Kenyon bill.

The plan, which would establish rehabilitation centres for the training and instruction of disabled and other war veterans, at present calls for no camp south of New England than a site in New York State. The Boston American at once took up the fight to secure one in Massachusetts, where it would more adequately serve the New England soldiers.

"I can think of no better or more convenient place to establish one of the four universities than Camp Devens, Massachusetts," said Governor Cox. "The location of such a university would adequately take care of all the disabled veterans of the eastern part of the country. Camp Devens is an ideal location for such an institution.

"I believe the United States owes the duty of giving every consideration to the disabled soldiers."

Another who endorsed the plan heartily was William A. Stanis, president of the Boston Five Cents Savings Bank.

Also in this plan, head of the A. Shumand department store, also commended the Boston American's plan. In addition to his own personal recommendation, he announced that the entire Shumand organization stands back of the proposal.

Others who have endorsed the move are: Mayor Peters, Adjutant-General Langton of the National Guard; Attorney-General Frank A. Good win, O'Keefe, head of the F. F. O'Keefe Advertising Agency, and Major James T. Duane, head of the State American Legion organization.

Also Postmaster Hays. Attention, S. V. P.

Cuba wants a loan, fifty millions, to start—the U. S. is expected to provide. Europe has had ten billions from the government pocketbook—no idea of paying that, principal or interest.

Each country has borrowed sums totalling several billions from private lenders. Each is ready to borrow more. The rates of interest offered are usurious, with lottery attachments to make lending more attractive.

And, in consequence, no American capitalist is "foolish enough" to invest his money in American enterprises employing labor, and about six million men are idle.

They will stay idle while this government allows the Federal Reserve to promote usury through the banks, and allows foreign governments to float usurious loans and run here lottery schemes that our laws forbid.

Mr. Mellon understands American business, is an American business man of great success and constructive methods. He will probably combine with Daugherty, a first-class American, to encourage employment of labor by making American industrial enterprises once more attractive to American capital.

To Mr. Hays:

Various real estate interests in New York city are trying to persuade Postmaster Hays to spend a few million dollars of the public money tearing down the huge New York City Postoffice and building up another bigger one.

The New York main postoffice IS a little out of date. Also the hats and shoes of many unemployed Americans are out of date. But they will get along with those hats and shoes for awhile.

Mr. Hays will probably tell the real estate gentlemen that he will get along with the old postoffice for awhile. This isn't exactly a time for tearing down whatever can be used for the time being, even if tearing down would boom values in the immediate neighborhood.

Find Your Job

The Biggest Boat, and Other Things

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

Annebourg, Swede, beat the world's record, swimming, going 1,000 meters in 14 minutes 19 seconds. He could have run the distance in one-quarter the time. A shark could swim the distance in a few seconds. Moral, do what you are fit for, pick the right work, the right gait. Many men progress in life about as rapidly as a catfish flopping along the land, and wonder what is the matter. They have the wrong job. Suppose fate had made Napoleon a clergyman, Henry Ward Beecher a cloakmaker.

The biggest boat the world has seen is building. Engines 62,000 horsepower, passengers, 5,200. That boat could carry Noah's Ark as a lifeboat, plus the whole Columbus fleet of discovery, slung outside the railings. And the boat, which was to have been called the Bismarck, is building in Germany. Her name will be changed to "Majestic," and an Englishman, Sir Bertram Hayes, knighted for sinking German submarines, will command her. Thus fate mocks all plans. But German shipbuilding seems to survive.

Sinn Fein will probably decide within forty-eight hours to accept or reject the Lloyd George offer. The decision is the most important ever made in Ireland. England's position now, at the end of the war, her reluctance for further trouble, and her desire to straighten out labor and other troubles at home impel her to concessions that would have been unthinkable to the British governing mind before the war.

If Sinn Fein accepts the Lloyd George offer, it is probable that many doubtful questions as they arise will be settled the Sinn Fein way—for the dominant English party must, at all costs, make the settlement a success.

If there is no settlement now, there will be fighting, indefinitely prolonged, ending with civil war in all probability. Irishmen not satisfied with the terms offered will consider all the facts before condemning any decision by De Valera.

You would have said in the old days, as you sat at the opera, looking over the footlights at whirling skirts of gauze: "There pirouettes a young lady of remarkably clear head. She never gets dizzy. It is doubtless because she drinks only pure, sparkling water." But home comes Rosina Galli from Europe, and she, greatest teacher of ballet dancing, knowing as much about dancing as Newton did about gravitation, says it is almost impossible to teach ballet dancing now, "because when dancers drink only water their legs are not nimble." Who would have thought that?

In the East River, New York now dis-covers an automobile "graveyard." Chicago had discovered her "motor hole" already, in an old quarry full of water.

From these holes, of which there are probably dozens throughout the country, the police have been fishing up automobiles of various vintages, as a boy occasionally pulls up an old shoe on his fish line.

How did the automobiles get in the deep hole? Ask your insurance system. A few of them were dropped by frightened automobile thieves. The majority were put in by citizens that had insured their automobiles against theft and welcomed an easy way to collect the insurance, thus "selling the old car" at a good price.

For that sort of insurance the great majority pay preposterous insurance rates against fire and theft. There ought to be an automobile co-operative insurance company, carefully selecting its risks. It could cut 75 per cent. off the cost of insurance.

Government used to be whiskey's partner, made hundreds of millions a year out of the partnership and never worried about the quality of whiskey—let the drinker worry.

Now the government, turning the other cheek to the bootleggers and their customers, offers to test all "hootch" free of charge and tell the "hootch" buyers whether they are drinking ordinary fusel oil and alcohol mixed, which is "good whiskey," or dangerous stuff, such as wood alcohol or benzine. It is an obliging government.

PUBLIC MARKETING LOWERS PRICES

They Will Come Down Still More if Women Encourage the Markets, Says Annie Laurie—She Touches on the Massachusetts Necessaries of Life Commission

By Annie Laurie

San Francisco, Aug. 25.—Going down—no, not the elevator.

The price of food in the markets of San Francisco.

Not down far enough yet? That's true. Keep working, keep talking, keep noticing, keep marketing and it will be. Make no mistake about it.

Potatoes, onions, tomatoes, lettuce, apricots, apples, plums—you can get them today for a little more than half what you had to pay before the San Francisco housekeeper woke up and demanded her rights.

If you don't believe it look into the windows of the groceries and fruit shops and the vegetable markets. Notice the prices and the quality of the things for sale. And if you aren't satisfied with what you see go on down to the Farmers' Public Market and find out just exactly what you can get there and how much you can save by buying there.

The fight on the high cost of living is spreading all over the United States.

Boston Commission

In Massachusetts there's a commission on the necessaries of life.

That commission issues a bulletin every two or three days and advises the public what to do about things to eat, where to buy, what to buy and how much to pay.

Just now the commission is advising a boycott on the ice cream dealers of Massachusetts.

"Use your powerful weapon," says the commission to the public, "and the profiteers will have to give in.

Ice cream and candy are hardly to be reckoned among the necessaries of life, but after all, who wants to be gouged and held up every time he'd like to take home a box of candy for the week-end?

Sugar has gone down, the price of other has gone down and we're paying $1.25 and $1.50 a pound for candy that we used to get for 60 cents.

Ice cream. Each proprietor of each shop appears to set his own price and get it while the getting is good. Ice cream soda used to be 10 cents a glass from one end of the State to the other. Now it's 16 cents in some places and 35 cents in others.

What's the answer?

There are two replies when anyone asks you the reason for this situation.

One is that some people are foolish enough to buy anything no matter what it costs so long as they have one penny to rub against another. And the other answer is the attitude of profiteering which has spread like a contagious disease from one class to the other and from one end of this continent to the other.

The grocers' associations of the United States held a convention in Kansas City a week or so ago. That convention was reported to all the trade journals, as of course it should have been. I happened to see a San Francisco groceries newspaper the other day. I wish somebody would reproduce the report of the grocers' convention on the front page of every newspaper in the United States. It is illuminating, to say the least.

The mayor of Kansas City couldn't welcome the convention, but he sent a representative to take his place and the representative made a speech giving the delegates the freedom of the city and all the rest of the usual thing. But in the course of his speech he said he hoped the grocers would do something in their convention to cut down the high price of food.

"I tried to buy a melon here the other day," he said, "just a plain watermelon, such as I've paid 20 cents for a thousand times in my life, and the grocer asked me $2 for it. Let's get rid of $2 ne-lows, the people who buy them and the people who try to sell them."

The door wasn't shut behind the man who made that speech before he was attacked on every side. A gentleman from Georgia made a speech in which he said that some people would pay anything you asked for anything they wanted and he thought it was perfectly right to ask whatever you could get.

Another man rose and made an impassioned defence of the $2 watermelon and the men who had sense enough to get such a price for something which paid the farmer somewhere between 9 and 11 cents. No, he didn't mention the farmer or the customer, either, for that matter. He was talking about the grocer and fruit dealer.

The whole convention indorsed this attitude and no doubt the trade papers all over the country printed the record of this indorsement.

Wouldn't it be interesting to see what a convention of plain, everyday men and women who have to work hard to get the money to pay for what they eat would have to say in such a situation as this?

It's no use, gentlemen, not the slightest particle of use.

The tide has turned and if you don't get out of the way you're going to get your feet wet and that's all there is about it.

Not all of the high price of food is the fault of all the men who make a living by selling things to eat. Some of it is the fault of the system.

Under that system when you buy a box of tomatoes you pay six different people for them—the farmer, the railroad man, the wholesaler, the commission man, the jobber and the retailer. No wonder you think twice before you plan a tomato salad or some baked tomatoes with the roast; and it is the same with every other article you buy for your table.

It's all clumsy and stupid and too intricate for modern ideas.

Somebody is going to do something to put a permanent stop to all this passing from hand to hand of every morsel of foodstuff that is brought into the markets.

The Farmers' Public Market here in San Francisco is a little, feeble, staggering step in the right direction.

How far is that step going to take us?

That depends upon you and me and the woman across the street and the woman next door and the woman in the apartment upstairs.

Clumsy and Stupid

If we come to our senses and find out what every foreign woman knows from the time she's able to braid her own hair we'll begin to realize that it takes just as much shopping to get a good supply of food for the family table as it does to buy pretty clothes for the family children.

Maybe it ought not to, but it does.

Who would buy a dress or a hat or even the material for a 10-cent apron unsight, unseen? Not one woman on earth who was able to get onto her feet and walk through a department store. If she wants stripes she looks for the right kind of stripes. If she wants solid colors she looks for the right shade and the right price. Since the Farmers' Public Market has been opened San Francisco women are discovering that it's just about as practical to telephone an order for perishable vegetables or for meat or for anything else to eat as it would be to telephone down for two yards of gingham and expect the clerk to pick out exactly what you want.

We were all willing and eager to Hooverize when we wanted to help the Belgians and the Montenegrins and the Serbians and all the rest. And we're just beginning to get it into our heads that there is such a thing as Hooverizing for our own families and our own children. And we're going to do it, we women of San Francisco. We're beginning to do it right now. Don't try to sweep back the ocean, gentlemen of the old-fashioned habit of mind. You haven't got a broom that's big enough to do it.

GET A HOBBY

Do not get to look upon life as "the daily grind."

Get infatuated in something for your leisure hours that will afford you the kind of exercise and recreation which will break up the monotony of every day living by your work alone.

Every working person needs a change from what they do to earn a living.

If the work is sedentary, then choose something which will send the blood tingling, and cause the perspiration to start, and put enough spirit into it to permeate your work-a-day life.

Those who have hobbies which make it necessary for them to get out of doors are fortunate.

Fresh air is something of which we cannot get too much.

If you are an indoor worker and haven't an outdoor hobby, make one some way and ride it often if you would keep your health and strong nerves.

The husband or wife who gets plenty of fresh air makes a better helpmate provided they have sense enough to realize and see to it that the other has just as regular opportunity to get the fresh air.

Disposition are better when there is plenty of oxygen in the blood.

REPROACHES FROM WIFE DISABLE A MAN

By Nellie Bly

THE final blow was the hat worn by a stranger woman who walked along the opposite side of the street.

He was a good, loyal, hard-working husband. He worked steadily, and faithfully, and every week brought his pay envelope home to his wife unopened.

After counting the money carefully, she handed him five dollars for his next week's carfare and lunches.

He wasn't very well fed, for she used the money first to buy what she wanted to adorn herself, and what was left she spent on the house. Sometimes he had breakfast and sometimes he hadn't. It all depended.

If he got up in time to cook his own breakfast and if there was enough left over in the house from the preceding supper, he ate. If the cupboard was bare, he went to his business with an empty stomach. And with a faint weariness he would do his work until noon. No cream, for it costs 20 cents, and he never could afford that.

Way He Was Fed.

The way he was fed and the way he was nagged completely unfitted him for the struggle of life. He worked faithfully, but his ill-fed condition prevented him from making a success. He never complained at home. The reproaches of his wife cut deep and drained away the last vestige of hope. He believed in himself once, and he would have gotten on had he been fed properly and not been nagged. But the more he listened to the reproaches of his wife, the more he began to believe that perhaps, after all, she was right. And so the ground slipped under his feet.

Finally dull times caused a reduction of the force, and although he was one of the oldest and most faithful employes, he was laid off.

He didn't care to tell his wife the next morning. He dreaded the result. He had made an excuse to stay in bed saying he was ill and unable to work.

This gave her a splendid chance to nag and reproach, and he lay there for hours in weary helplessness enduring it. Suddenly his wife let out a scream. She had been standing at the window gazing out into the street while she had been tongue-lashing him. Aroused by the cry of almost agony he sprang from the bed and ran to her side. She pointed tauntingly to a woman who was walking along the pavement on the opposite side of the street.

Dress Was Short.

The woman's dress was short and her hat was a mass of birds of paradise feathers.

"I always wanted a hat like that," she began to cry.

"Other women can have what they want and I can't."

From that she went into a hysterical fit, screaming and sobbing for over an hour. He tried every way he could to quiet her, and finally when she had exhausted herself he took his hat and left the house.

He has never come back. He is living in a small, dark back room under an assumed name. He never intends to. He doesn't even know what he is going to do. His life is broken. His digestion is destroyed and with it his health, and ambition and hope have been nagged out of him. He is finished. He is indifferent to what becomes of his wife. He only knows he never want to see her again.

It was not the last straw that broke the camel's back, but a hat on the head of a stranger.

In fact, unless a woman makes a home that is comfortable, economical and happy for the man who earns the salary to support it, the man ought to quit. The least that can be done for this father and support of a family is to give him peace of mind, good food and encouragement. The wife who can't do this is worthless and unworthy of the name.

ARE WOMEN BETTER THAN MEN?

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

ARE women better than men? Why should they be?

Those are pertinent questions always. Let us try to answer them without prejudice. Prejudice, by the way, means pre-judgment.

These questions are not to be answered by statistics, either. Nor by any other superficial method. Certainly not by the long-faced deliverances of professional reformers, who are not likely to be believers in human nature, whether feminine or masculine.

Silence in the court room! Here now comes the superintendent of the National Reform Bureau to offer testimony to the degeneracy of womankind. Hear ye! Hear ye!

"The short skirt and other fashions adopted by women are rapidly eliminating any problem as to the so-called double standard. These things are dragging woman down from the place where man, by common consent, placed her.

Cigarette Smoking.

"The adoption of cigarette smoking is the beginning of the end,—an end where virtually all the male vices will be feminine vices, too.

"When that situation comes, the world will cease to expect anything better of its women than it expects of its men. That will remove the double standard automatically."

Oh, the times! Oh, the manners! Oh, horrors! Oh, shame!

This opinion is cited at such length because it is typical. Sad and earnest and sincere, as obviously it is, also it is mirth-provoking because of its solemn seriousness, and funny in its fearfulness.

One is tempted at once to action of the awful indictment and to push it to logical extremities, and to ask: Suppose women in general smoked cigarettes and cigars and pipes; and suppose their skirts disappeared altogether and gave way to trousers—would these outward changes and indulgences be symbolic proof of the total depravity of womankind?

Again, suppose that the average woman became, in outward seeming, as "bad" as the average man, would this be evidence that the whole human race had gone to the bow-wows?

Able to Imagine.

Commend to us the very, very good for knowing, or being able to imagine, depths of degradation and moral damage beyond the knowledge, experience, or imagination of the rest of us, male or female!

For, of course, this terrible indictment is brought by a professional good man.

Please note the insidiousness of the suggestion that these wicked doings, cigarette smoking and the like, drag woman down from the place where MEN have put her.

That brings on our second query: Should women be better than men?

Did women apply for pedestals? Did they ask men to worship them? Do they want to be better than men? Or are they content, merely to be regarded as better?

Is the moral superiority of women a fact—or a fiction, flattering to the female of the species?

Even in the tradition of the supposed intellectual superiority of man is pleasing to the vanity of the male?

For ages, men have at least pretended to worship women—with the privilege, however, always evident in mere man to convert his deity into a door-mat, if it so pleased his lordship!

If in the form of the ideals of Ultimate Democracy to make no distinction between the sexes, but to give FULNESS OF OPPORTUNITY TO EACH INDIVIDUAL, as a human unit.

For better or worse, morally and intellectually, at last and at least we shall know the truth!

False Valuation.

No superstition, no pretence, no pedestals to give false valuations to either sex.

Look at another, more hopeful, picture.

At the last Harvard commencement, thirty-six female members of the Graduate School of Education received their degrees. This, for the first time since the college was founded, 286 years ago!

We must not worry too much about short skirts and other silly fashions. They are not a reliable moral index. If the truth were known, and opportunity were equal for a sufficiently long time, women might become as good as men, and men as intelligent as women. Or reverse, if you choose.

Seriously, the natural tendency, under democratic auspices, is probably towards making LESS OF SEX AND MORE OF INDIVIDUALITY.

Honestly, aren't you just human, and only incidentally fand accidentally) female or male?

GOD SAVE THE COMMONWEALTH OF HUMAN BEINGS!
